Little Girl Called to Testify Against Roper

SON DENOUNCED DI COLA BEFORE MURDER

REFUSED TO GIVE CASH TO BOVA

Stephen A. Malato of Chicago, attorney for Giuseppe Di Cola of Italy, who is the chief heir under the will of the assassinated "Lemon King," Gaspare Di Cola, made three statements today which set the police investigation of Di Cola's murder into a new track.

The statements were:

That up to about two years ago Mrs. Di Cola gave several sums of money to Antonio Bova, her son by her Italian marriage.

That these payments stopped two years ago.

That immediately afterward Antonio Bova openly denounced Di Cola in an Italian meeting in Tremont Temple.

As a result of these statements the police determined today to question Bova again and see if he can shed any further light on the tragedy.

Malato has offered a $5,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and indictment of the assassin. The offer spurred interest in the case today to an extraordinary pitch.

At the same time, Malato told the story of Di Cola's romance—how he loved an Italian peasant girl; how his father threatened to drive him from home; how the girl to save Di Cola married a half-witted Italian peasant; how Di Cola was the father of one child who died, while the peasant was the father of Antonio Bova; and how Di Cola and the girl he loved died at last to this country, where they had lived for twenty odd years as man and wife.

The important developments of the day were:

1—The grilling of "Mrs. Di Cola" by Attorney Malato in an effort to disclose exactly what she knew of the shooting and if a desire to shield anyone close to her was prompting her to deny that she recognized Di Cola's slayer.

2—The discovery that "Mrs. Di Cola" had two children before her elopement with Di Cola, one of whom died

HOMES OF THREE RICH FAMILIES LOOTED

Mrs. S. D. Warren (Helen Thomas), from whose home on the North Shore a thief stole gems worth $15,000.

That automobile thieves who have ransacked a number of houses of wealthy North Shore Summer residents this Summer were responsible for the $15,000 gem robbery Sunday morning at the Samuel D. Warren residence at Essex is the belief that gained ground today.

Today it was learned that the thieves broke into the Henry Andrews residence on Apple street, Essex, at the foot of the hill leading to the Warren estate.

The same method of gaining entrance—removing a screen from a lower window—was used here as at the Warren house.

HEARD THE ROBBER.

Charles Andrews, son of Henry Andrews, today said that he heard an automobile come up Apple street and either stop below the house or turn up the Warren residence shortly after midnight Saturday. The boy also heard a curious scraping outside but forgot it and went to sleep. The next morning it was found that a screen had been taken out of the lower window and evidences of some person having entered the house and gone through several rooms was apparent, but the robbers secured nothing.

Later when the Warren robbery came to light, Mr. Andrews communicated the news of the break at his house to Mr. Warren.

Residents of Essex today who learned the details of the gem robbery expressed surprise that anyone should be able to get past the blooded bull terrier which runs loose on the Warren estate at nights. It is believed that the robber must have worked with a confederate.

Martin Herbert, seventy, who lives in a small house near the Andrews, James G. Low, Jacob K. Perkins and Edward Story, nearby residents, said that they didn't hear the automobile going towards the entrance to the

RUSH WAR PLANS AT ATHENS

By SIDNEY B. CAVE,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

London, Sept. 28.—Reuter dispatches from Athens state that a declaration of war by Greece against Bulgaria has been decided upon.

It is reported that King Constantine and his family will go to Constantinople for the remainder of the war, says an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen today.

Greece's decision to enter the war on the side of the allies has been followed by immediate preparations to put the Greek army on a war footing. It is believed that King Constantine already has signed a decree of mobilization.

The Greek army and navy will be supplied with great stores of arms and munitions by the allied nations. M. Venizelos, former premier and leader of the pro-ally party, has become the man of the hour in Greece. His prestige ranks with, if it does not overshadow, that of King Constantine's.

WOULD BE 15TH NATION.

A formal declaration of war by Greece would make her the fifteenth to enter the world conflict and the eleventh to take the field against the Germanic allies.

In some quarters belief prevails that the Greek movement has been impressed no less by the growing pro-ally feeling in Greece than by the great victories which the Anglo-French armies are winning on the Somme front. Almost every day now brings news of fresh progress and of growing demoralization among the Germans.

KING READY TO RETIRE.

The future conduct of King Constantine is doubtful, as he is reported as having said that "if the Greek people show that they no longer want him he will retire to Germany with his family to make his future home."

Queen Sophia, a sister of the German Emperor, was present at the Greek ministerial council at which it was decided to enter the war. She presented a tragic figure at that historic conference.

News from Athens that seven Greek warships have joined the allied fleet has been followed by reports of further desertions from the army and growing strength of the national defence army of the revolutionists.

Polo Grounds, Sept. 28.—The Braves and Giants began their five-game series here today, starting with a double attraction. It was estimated that 20,000 "fans" were on hand when the first game began.

This series is an important one for the Braves. If they win the majority of their games here, they will still be in the pennant chase. As the Giants are eager to oust the Braves from third place, they will fight hard to set back Stallings' clan.

The Giants have lost the services of the wonderful first baseman, Walter Holke. He is laid up with a bad finger. Manager Stallings sent Rudolph against the Giants in the first game. McGraw selected Tesreau to do his firing.

Chancellor Is Storm Centre as Reichstag Opens

By International News Service.

Berlin, Sept. 28.—When the Reichstag opened for its Autumn session today the atmosphere was charged with tension that threatened to explode prematurely the various political "bombs" that have been laid during the past few months by the different factions.

The imperial chancellor, Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, was the centre of interest even during the preliminary formal proceedings in the course of which routine matters were disposed of. He will become the storm centre of the impending political upheaval as soon as a general debate ensues.

Powerful influences have been aligned to bring about his fall, principally because of his pacific attitude in the submarine controversies with the United States.

The storm will break loose immediately after he has made his speech in which he will discuss the recent developments of the war and possibly the prospects of peace.

MRS. FOX WEEPS IN COURT

Dorothy Fox, the twelve-year old daughter of Mrs. Jessie Fox of Roxbury, at whose home Bert Roper roomed, was expected to be called to the witness stand in the murder trial this afternoon at East Cambridge of young Roper, who is charged with having slain his father, Albert Roper, the Tewksbury florist.

The girl came to court, as she has on preceding days of the trial, with her mother. While her mother gave additional testimony today, Dorothy watched her lovingly.

The mother was again overcome. She broke down and wept in the course of her testimony. It was apparently not at any particular question, but at the continued ordeal.

When her mother wept, Dorothy's expression of childish affection deepened to one of keenest sympathy.

Bert Roper never was divorced, but Mrs. Fox said that he told her he had been and would marry her. She said:

He told me his divorce was granted in October, 1915, and would become absolute in April, 1916, and that we would be married.

Mrs. Fox admitted she often coaxed Roper to remain at her flat when he was thinking of going away for a while.

Q. Did you ever hold him at your home against his will? A. Often he

ASK ACTION TO SAVE LIVES

A decrease in the number of new cases of infantile paralysis throughout the State, but an increase in Boston, one death in Quincy and a sharp warning to citizens by Mayor Curley at a public meeting were features of the epidemic situation today.

The Mayor told a number of representative citizens in the old aldermanic chamber at City Hall that out of the many children sent to the City Hospital with infantile paralysis since this epidemic began only one had been discharged.

The Mayor emphasized the need of cleaner streets, and said there ought to be a statute making it a criminal offense for a tenant or occupant to litter streets or alleys.

578 FOR SEPTEMBER.

The State Department of Health reported 23 new cases for the twenty-four hours ending at 9 a. m. today, making a total of 574 cases for September, or 194 more than were reported during the whole of 1916 up to September 1.

The death of Peter Belladonna of No. 237 Quincy avenue, Quincy, from infantile paralysis was reported today. Seven of the new cases are in Boston, making a total of 134 cases in the city this month.

Yesterday there were eight cases reported in Boston and the day before there were five. The seven new Bos-

FIFTH OF TWELVE PRELIMINARY ARTICLES ON THE BIG BATTLES

FIGHT FOR CUSTODY OF KIDNAPED GIRL

The fight for the custody of little five-year-old Eleanor Haddie, daughter of Mrs. Eleanor Haddie, a Congress street manicurist, who lives at No. 148 Sea street, North Weymouth, has been reopened.

Dispatches today from Chicago state that the girl's father, James Haddie, manager for Barclay & Co., at No. 27 North State street, took her on a wild ride to keep Dr. Leonard F. Wolfe, her uncle, of Boston and North Weymouth, from bringing her East to her mother. Dr. Wolfe had Haddie held on a charge of larceny. Judge Koersten will decide today who will get Eleanor.

Eleanor, pretty as a picture, with perfect convent manners, is having a regular moving picture experience. She is the center of plots and kidnapings, alleged bribes and wild taxicab rides, and although she has not ever done anything but be a "good girl," she slept in the Clark street police station, Chicago, last night, after passing the day in the dingy basement of the detective bureau.

"Daddy, I don't like this hotel," Eleanor declared when she looked the police station over. "Daddy, don't take me to this kind of hotels any more. They look ours creeping place and my daddy and me haven't place to sleep, and I'm sleepy."

She clung to her father's neck and when the police searched him she cried: "Don't you dare to take my daddy's money away from him."

Mrs. Eleanor Haddie, who lives at North Weymouth with Dr. and Mrs. Wolfe, is suing Haddie for divorce. She charges cruel and abusive treatment. Last October Haddie took Eleanor from her mother's home in Bridgeport, Ct., to Chicago. There is an indictment against him in Bridgeport, charging abduction.

According to Attorney John E. Owen, Haddie's attorney until yesterday, when he obtained the services of John B. Lyle, an attempt was made to extradite Haddie. Governor Dunne held his offence was not extraditable one, as there was no provision in the divorce bill restraining him from leaving the jurisdiction of the Connecticut court. Judge Kerst then gave the father the care of the child, whose movements were to be under the supervision of Attorney Owen.

"Last Sunday," said Mr. Owen, "Haddie telephoned that he had decided to let the mother have the baby. He came to my office with Dr. Wolfe and told him in my presence that if the indictment in Connecticut could be quashed and Mrs. Haddie would not ask for alimony, he would give up the baby. District Attorney Delaney of Bridgeport telegraphed us it would be all right if the child was returned to the jurisdiction of his court and everything was arranged.

"In my presence at the Sherman Hotel Monday night Dr. Wolfe wanted Haddie to sign a contract never to see Eleanor. He refused and took her away in a taxicab."

Mr. Lyle, Haddie's attorney, said he was going to see that Haddie kept his daughter.

Mr. Haddie with his child on his lap, hugged her close while he told how he put her into a taxicab at the Sherman Hotel Monday night when Dr. Wolfe, Attorney Owen and a detective sergeant gave him papers to sign saying he could not see the baby any more.

JAMES HADDIE and his daughter Eleanor, five, who are held in Chicago pending court decision as to the girl's custody.

ALIBI DEFENCE IN SHOOTING OF MACK

Jack Finnerty, on trial for shooting Eddie Mack, the sporting man, set up an alibi defence when his lawyer, Major Thomas Walsh, put him on the witness stand in his own behalf in the Suffolk Superior Criminal Court today.

He said he wasn't even at the Braves Field ball game on June 5, the day of the shooting; that he was home at 3 o'clock, the time of the shooting, and that, while he was attacked by Mack on the Common early in the afternoon, he went right home from there.

Finnerty's father, Thomas Finnerty, swore that his son was home at 3 o'clock that afternoon.

DENIES TROUBLE IN HOTEL.

Mack, who denied yesterday he knew who shot him, was recalled to the stand by Finnerty's lawyer. He denied having had trouble in Clarke's Hotel with a bartender early in the afternoon or that he made any motion to draw a weapon. A fortnight before the shooting, he said, he had a "mouth argument" with one of the bartenders. Later Manager John F. Williams of Clarke's testified that Mack was in the hotel on the day of the shooting, but when he was asked whether Mack made a motion as if to "pull a gun," the question was ruled out on the State's objection.

Asked, for the second time, to state his business, Mack said:

"I'm an athletic promoter, manager of professional boxers, advocating the manly art of self-defence."

He said he was in poor health, and that he could not see across the room. Later, in cross-examination, he admitted he could see third base on a ball field, or a close play at second.

FINNERTY TELLS STORY.

Young Finnerty's story of his movements on the afternoon of June 5, was thus:

"I met Mack on the Common about noon. He had been drinking. He kicked at me and choked me and scratched my face. Then he asked me: 'What are you going to do about it?' and I said: 'Nothing.'

"I went right home. I did not go to the ball game. I did not shoot Mack. The first I knew of it was when I read it in the papers."

In cross-examination Assistant District Attorney Gallagher had Mack put on the overcoat he wore when shot. Finnerty was called to stand alongside Mack before the jury and to put his right hand back to his hip pocket, like a man about to draw a weapon.

Mr. Gallagher called the jury's attention to the bullet hole in the left-hand side of Mack's overcoat, the powder marks near the pocket and the relative position of Finnerty's right hand in reference to the height of the bullet hole.

Evidence was finished at 11 o'clock, and Major Walsh began argument for Finnerty.

READING, PA., FIRE FIGHTERS AT HULL

The members of the Reading, Pa., hose company, who were entertained yesterday by the Boston Fire Department officials, were guests today of the Hull department. The men left for Pemberton, where they were met by Chief John L. Mitchell and other Hull firemen. The day's program consisted of a sightseeing tour, including inspection of the three fire stations, and clambake.

Bride of 14 Days Accuses Husband

By International News Service.

New York, Sept. 28.—"Look at the nice furniture in the apartment over there," Mrs. Lena Millrad, thirty, a bride of two weeks, asserts her husband said to her, calling her to the window of their apartment in Charlotte street, the Bronx. "Stoop lower," he commanded, according to her story. As she did so, she claims, he pushed her out of the five-story window. Clothesline broke the force of her fall into the courtyard and perhaps saved her life. She is at the Lincoln Hospital, suffering from bad bruises and possible internal injuries. Millrad denies the charge. He is held by the police.

WILSON MONEY IS COMING FORWARD

New York, Sept. 28.—More Wilson money is appearing in the financial district, according to betting commissioners who are placing bets on the November elections. The odds on Hughes are still 2 to 1, with Republicans willing to back their favorite freely at these figures.

The Wilson men are showing more willingness to back their favorite and are inclined to accept less odds than 2 to 1. One man offered $1,000 on Wilson against $2,400. Little betting is being done, however, at present. Wagers aggregating more than $7,400 at odds of 9 to 5 were placed with Fred Schumm of Brooklyn that Hughes will be elected and at 8 to 5 that he will carry this State.

INFERIOR SHELLS IN DANIELS' CITY

Washington, Sept. 28.—Commissioned officers of the Atlantic fleet have made sensational charges that big gun shells, purchased from inexperienced munition makers in Raleigh, N. C., home city of Secretary of the Navy Daniels, were of such inferior quality that when fired in battle practice they broke in pieces or gases and dropped over the ship's side, instead of carrying to the targets.

The report comes, not from a single ship, but from several, and has become a navy scandal, according to information received here.

Investigation at the Bureau of Ordnance disclosed that in spite of the unsatisfactory results Secretary Daniels gave the company in his home city a new contract for $40,500 in six and eight-inch shells as recently as last month.

Secretary Daniels has admitted that the Raleigh Iron Works Company had never manufactured shells until awarded a contract by the United States government for 15,000, ranging in size from 5.5 to eight inches.

The first contract was awarded the company by the navy in November, 1914. Later the original purchases were increased so that the total contracts given to date amount to $155,000.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS INCREASES IN BOSTON

ton cases reported were brought to the attention of the health authorities between the hours of five last night and nine this morning; the largest number reported so far for a similar period.

ENFORCE THEATRE ORDER.

It became known today that there are 124 cases of the disease in the south department of the City Hospital. The officials at the hospital would not state just how large the increase in cases is, but it was intimated that if the epidemic does not abate the city may accept the offer of the federal authorities which was made some time ago for the use of the hospitals at the quarantine station on Gallups Island.

THEATRES BAR CHILDREN.

Most Boston theatres and places of amusement received today the order barring children under sixteen, and the new regulation went into effect at today's performances, and will be enforced by all of the larger theatres tonight for the first time.

At the citizens' meeting in City Hall, to consider action for cleaner streets and other epidemic preventives, the mayor said:

"Something must be done to meet this peculiar situation and we have met here to consider what can be done. We must have the co-operation of the public and they must act with the other departments. People must realize their obligation to their neighbors and keep their premises clean.

"I do not think that anything can be done by simply promoting a moral influence in this community. Something more than city ordinance must bring about a change.

"There must be a statute enacted making it criminal negligence for tenants or owners of property to litter their back alleys.

OULD WIPE OUT SLUMS.

"It is a good thing for us to meet in the interests of clean streets because you have suggestions to make. A constructive program is needed. The city ought to be allowed to go into alleys and pave it for cleanliness and charge the expense to the abutters.

"We ought to spend a half million dollars in wiping out the slums of Boston. We have never spent a dollar in this direction. When you take in such streets as Morton and Stillman streets in the North End you will understand what I mean. Considerable has been said about an incinerator, but you must remember, as much as I believe in this means of disposing of garbage, the city of Boston is tied down to a contract of ten years to a sanitary disposing company. When this contract is over let us urge this incinerator."

The Mayor advocated, during the course of infantile paralysis, that milk should be pasteurized and thought that the city should spend $200,000 for a central plant.

"Utopia does not come in the night," said the Mayor.

Street Commissioner Murphy thought that the people should be educated to keep the city clean. "We ought to have $25,000 burlap bags to give to the people to put away their refuse paper," he said.

WOULD HOLD TENANTS.

Dr. Mahoney, chairman of the Board of Health, declared "the tenant as well as owner should be held responsible for keeping premise sclean."

President R. P. Dellane of the Dorchester Board of Trade pleaded for covered metal cans to hold garbage, and said that the catch basin, of which 1,569 are in his district, were seldom attended to.

"I've seen only forty-two catch basins out of 2,500 cleaned in Dorchester in ten years," he said.

He also condemned dry sweeping.

F. J. Kyle of Charlestown in his remarks urged the police to co-operate more with the street commissioner.

Thomas Jordan, inspector of health service, considered Boston a difficult city to keep clean and urged that all house refuse be burned. "Especially stop tenants from throwing stuff out of the back windows," he said.

Other speakers told of improved condition in the South and the North Ends and asked for a clean up every month.

The State Department of Health reported these cases:

Fall River—João Borge, No. 37 Short street.

North Attleboro—Charlie D. Morrison, Columbia road.

Everett—Rita Brogan, No. 181 Broadway.

Lynn—Eva B. Stark, No. 236 Boston street.

Malden—Edward Milliken, No. 1200 Salem street; Elisabeth Doherty, No. 49 Floral avenue.

The Salem Board of Health today reported that Henry Plourde, two months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Plourde of No. 13 Bowditch street, Salem, had been stricken with the disease.

Twelve persons who have had infantile paralysis and who have recovered have given blood to the Harvard Medical School for a serum injected into to victims who have the disease in its first stages. Patients so treated are being closely studied.

The physicians interested in this movement are connected with the Peter Brigham Hospital and are working in connection with Harvard Medical School.

SEEK BLOOD SUPPLY.

"We need more persons who are willing to give their blood for this serum," said one of the physicians in charge. "Cases from fifteen to twenty years old are preferable. Young children are carefully handled and but little blood is taken from them, but those between the ages of fifteen to twenty furnish enough blood for the serum which will answer for six or seven persons afflicted. The public should be made to realize that there is no harm in this loss of blood, as those who are making up this lost blood are not only very carefully handling those who make the offer of blood, but it may be a wise thing for them to give it from other points of view.

"Nothing definite has as yet been determined about the results of this examination or its real benefits.

"But if people who have such cases will only help the infantile paralysis commission, they may materially help in stopping the spread of the disease and do a good turn for humanity."

WIFE SHOT IN HOTEL ROOM TELLS STORY

Mrs. Harry Belzer of Brooklyn, who shot and killed Joseph C. Gravour of New York, in a room of the Hotel Walton, Philadelphia. Before turning the revolver on herself and ending her own life, she gravely wounded the woman who had supplanted her in Gravour's affections—Mrs. J. C. Leduc, the beautiful young wife of a wealthy Chicago business man.

By International News Service.

Philadelphia, Sept. 28.—Mrs. J. C. Leduc at last broke her silence today. To her husband, who had hastened from their home in Chicago to her bedside at the Jefferson Hospital, she made the first statement of the part she played in the Gravour tragedy.

Mrs. Leduc said she was visiting relatives here when Gravour communicated with her and invited her to attend the theatre Tuesday night. She said Gravour insisted on taking her handbag to his room in the Hotel Walton, while they were at the theatre, and after the performance she accompanied him to the room to get the bag.

A moment later Mrs. Harry Belzer burst into the room and began firing.

"KNOWS NO WRONG."

"She's a girl who knows no wrong—as square as a dollar. And I'll stick to her through thick and thin."

Joseph Leduc, Chicago merchant and clubman, arriving at the Jefferson Hospital today, thus took up the cudgels for his wife who was shot and dangerously wounded by Mrs. Harry Belzer of Brooklyn who killed Joseph C. Gravour of New York and herself, when finding Gravour and Mrs. Leduc in a room in the Walton Hotel, last Tuesday night.

Leduc hastened to his wife's bedside in response to a brief telegram reading:

"Have been shot. Come to Jefferson Hospital."

For nearly two hours the grief stricken husband was held in suspense before he was allowed to see his wife. Questioned by the police, he staunchly defended her against all suspicion of wrongdoing, saying he could "trust her to the dot."

WILL TAKE BACK WIFE.

Nor had he any ill words for Gravour, whom he called familiarly, "Joe," a fine square fellow. His wife, he said, was not to blame for the fact that she was registered at the Walton as Gravour's wife, say, ing it must have been a mistake.

"I believe implicitly in the integrity of my wife," Leduc said to Police Captain Tate with emphasis, "and when she is well enough I want to take her back to our home, where she will be welcomed by relatives and friends."

Finally admitted to the sick room, he greeted his wife affectionately, telling her, "Everything will be all right."

Leduc said he had never heard of Mrs. Belzer. He refuted the suggestion that his wife had stayed in Atlantic City with Gravour.

A mystic message

"KNOWS NO WRONG."

which informed Mrs. Belzer of the fact that Gravour had gone to Philadelphia with Mrs. Leduc only five hours before Mrs. Belzer killed Gravour and herself and shot Mrs. Leduc has caused the New York police to work on the theory that a conspiracy existed to bring about the murder. A search has been instituted there for the person who telephoned to Mrs. Belzer.

Before Gravour left with Mrs. Leduc on Monday, he called a friend to meet a young and beautiful woman from Chicago who he said was going to accompany him on a motor trip to Washington with a stopover in Philadelphia.

"I'm afraid of Margaret," he said to his friend. "She has been following me for the past few days and I am going to Washington to get away from her."

"Margaret" was Mrs. Belzer.

Mrs. Leduc is tall, slender, exceptionally pretty and twenty-nine years old. Her home is at No. 5001 Sheridan Boulevard, Chicago. She was married young to Leduc, who is now manager of a haberdashery store at No. 7 South Michigan avenue, Chicago. Leduc was expected at the Jefferson Hospital momentarily, as he started from Philadelphia on a race with death as soon as he heard of the shooting of his wife.

DISCREDITED REFORMER.

While the identity of Gravour was known from the first, additional facts about the man have come from New York, lending high color to his history. He was forty-five years old and president of the Alhambra Garage Company of No. 65 West One Hundred and Eighteenth street, New York City. He had been a widower for about two and one-half years.

Gravour was a discredited reformer. He was once connected with the Children's Aid Society of New York and was chief probation officer of the New York Court of Special Sessions. He was discharged in disgrace after it was proved that he connived with criminals to record them as first offenders so they could obtain light sentences.

He had a reputation at one time as a social reformer and was a star witness before the Rockefeller Grand Jury, which investigated white slavery.

Despite the cumulative proof that the sole survivor of the triple shooting is Mrs. Leduc, the young woman herself has fought all efforts to identify her, weak although she is.

When Captain of Detectives Joseph Tate came to her bedside she said:

"I won't tell—I won't; I won't; this thing is terrible enough as it is now. Please don't ask me who I am. Don't you understand that I cannot tell?"

Neither would she tell her relationship to the murdered New Yorker, Gravour, or her acquaintance with Mrs. Margaret McAndrews Belzer, ten years her senior. Apparently she had supplanted her older rival in the affections of Gravour and it was the mad jealousy caused by this that nerved the latter to kill he, former lover and herself and desperately wound Mrs. Leduc."

If she could not be with the man she loved in life, Mrs. Belzer chose to join him in death. The bodies of the two lay on adjoining slabs in the city morgue.

Efforts to conceal the identity of the woman who registered at the Walton with Gravour as his wife added to the complexities of the bizarre situation. The woman was taken to the Jefferson Hospital in a semi-conscious condition. A deep wound through the breast caused the doctors to shake their heads.

PALMER TELLS ADVENTURE OF WAR 'TANK'

By FREDERICK PALMER,
Accredited Correspondent with the British Army of the Press of the United States.

At the British Front in France, Sept. 28.—With a lull prevailing after the two-day battle which gained five villages and in which 5,000 prisoners were taken, the correspondent gleaned from participants many stories not only of courage and impulse, but of humor and paradox, possible only in such complicated and remorseless warfare as that of the grand offensive.

The most wonderful of all perhaps was that of one of the "tanks," or new crushing motor cars, which started for Berlin on its own initiative. This monstrous landship, ambling and lumbering along, did not wait for the infantry after the taking of Gueudecourt, but prodded over shell holes and across lots looking for food like some prehistoric lizard.

OUT OF GASOLINE.

Sooner or later it was bound to find another German trench and engage the occupants with its machine guns. This it succeeded, but it ran out of gasoline.

When the Germans found this strange creature, with its impenetrable steel hide, stalled, curiosity and a desire for revenge was a fillip to their ardor. They went after it with the stalking avidity of the prehistoric man pitting after a wounded mammoth that has had its bulk fast in one of the alleys of Cave Dwellers' row, while they tried to avoid the thrusts of its deadly tusks.

No such game was ever seen before on this Western front, which is used to all kinds of bizarre fighting.

According to the account mysteriously given by officers while the "tank's" machine guns were blazing right and left and taking heavy toll of life, some Germans managed to creep along their trenches under the fore and hind legs of this crushing beast and then they swarmed over it looking for an opening through which they might strike at its vitals.

They fired their rifles into its joints and bombed it all over, but to no more avail than burglars trying to jimmy their way into the turret of a battleship. All the while its machine guns were keep busy at all the human targets in reach. Its crew, all chosen dare-devils, concluded to stick until they were starved out or the Germans found the proper can-opener to get them out.

Finally, British infantrymen, seeing the "tank's" distress, did not wait on any orders or even to remain at their objective, which was already gained. They were out to save their imperiled comrade. With a cheer the British rushed the Germans and overwhelmed them. When the crew of the "tank" heard laughing and shouting in English they opened the door and called out, "We are all right if you will only get us some 'juice.' Let the old girl have a gazzle of her proper drink and we'll take the road again."

So the English formed a line in front of the tank, determined to defend her to the last man, while a runner went back for a can of gasoline, which arrived safely.

The beast, having taken a swallow, answered to the new fuel amidst more cheers. It left behind 250 dead Germans.

ANOTHER ADVENTURE.

Another "tank" which did well in this fight assisted in taking Thilpval. There was once a chateau in Thilpval, the cellars of which were roofed over by the remains of brick, stone and mortar in thick, shell-pummelled layers, which protected it from penetration by even nine and twelve-inch high explosives.

Here the Germans walled, smoking their mild cigars and drinking soda water brought up through shell-proof underground tunnels, while the roar over their heads were being belabored by British artillery. They lost the sense of security of the early Kansas gettier when he went below and closed the door of his cyclone cellar during a storm.

Of course they had a machine gun ready for business the minute the bombardment stopped as a welcome for the British infantry. When it began rattling Mister Thomas Atkins took cover and considered ways and means of silencing it.

Then, with elephantine deliberation, appeared a "Tank" crossing trenches and dipping its limber, very tedrenched ponderosity in and out of shell-holes and took the job off Mister Atkins' hands. Having finished it, it looked around for another. Its wonderful business is "tanking" around Thilpval and Hohenzollern redoubt, which lies between Thilpval and Courcelette.

Thilpval was held by the One Hundred and Eighteenth German Regiment. For a long time this regiment held this stand, according to the accounts of prisoners. They had fortified it and a commanding ridge by the diet of beaver industry, making ramified tunnels and dugouts in the chalky earth until they were safe from shell fire, which would easily have turned a fort like Maubeuge or Liege, or any other of the pre-war type, into wreckage and a grave for its occupants.

British Disperse Enemy Columns in Macedonia.

By International News Service.

London, Sept. 28.—Only minor action marked the last twenty-four hours on the allied right wing in Macedonia, where British and Italian forces face the Bulgarian left. The War Office issued this statement today:

"In the Doiran sector our artillery dispersed enemy working parties. Enemy aircraft was active. One machine was brought down on the Struma front allied warships shelled and dispersed enemy detachments at Hanolibas.

"French artillery shelled and dispersed an enemy column at Jenimon in a patrol encounter at the Orijak bridge the enemy was forced to retire. Our aeroplanes bombed the railway station of Angista."

H. A. Wise Wood to Talk.

Henry A. Wise Wood of New York will speak on the "Wisdom and Ethics of Preparedness" at a meeting of the Special Aid Society for American Preparedness on Friday, October 6, at 10:30 a. m. The meeting will be held in the rooms of the society at No. 601 Boylston street.

WAR SUMMARY

The allied gains on the Somme continued today, the British chalking up one advance between Thicpval and Courcelotte and another north of Flers.

It seems probable that the fighting on this front has now reached a point where the allied strategy can be understood. There is no doubt that it was hoped the first blow, in July, would break the German lines; and it did. Maps of the original German trench systems, drawn by British engineers, show that when the attack was launched July 1, the German trench system only extended to a line drawn roughly from Pozieres to Contalmaison, to Bazentin, to Longueval, to Guillemont, to Hardecourt.

That line was reached by the first blow, July 1 to 10. But the British found that in the interval new German trenches had been developed, and the Germans were as secure as before. There followed a long lull and the next hard fighting did not come till about September 1, when its new character began to be apparent

The allies have now settled down to a slow campaign, not seeking to break the German lines, but to push them back. They thrust a wedge straight forward, then by attacks spread the sides of this wedge outward. As the wedge is thrust in, they believe it must drag the adjacent German lines with it. This strategy has two great merits; it permits the smooth concentration of forces at the given point and the perfection of transportation facilities; and as it progresses it steadily stretches the German lines and lengthens them. Whether they will become thin enough by this stretching to break, remains to be seen.

The Bulgarian statement today says that the Bulgars and Germans have fortified their line in the Dobrudja, so that for the present, at least, this campaign may be regarded as ended. The Teutonic allies drove in here simply to establish a short defensive line from the Danube to the sea. The surprising weakness of the Rumanian troops tempted them to advance far and fast. They encountered a strong Rumanian force at length, attacked it, found it could not be dislodged—and now have fortified the defensive line they sought. Their original object has been accomplished, and their campaign was therefore a success.

The Bulgars report having achieved a victory over the French and Serbians in the Florina region west of Salonica. The allies had not become really dangerous there, although there had been weak moves northward against the Bulgars. This drive from Salonica seems to be a long time in developing. It is hard to understand why the Russians and Rumanians from the north and the other allies from the south have not struck simultaneously before this in an effort to bite the Teutonic allies in two.

BULGARS TRY TO RETAKE FLORINA

By International News Service.

Paris, Sept. 28.—Another repulse for the Bulgarians in western Greek Macedonia was announced by the War Office today in a report on Balkan operations.

"Two powerful attacks were delivered by the Bulgarians in an effort to retake Florina, but both were repulsed by the Franco-Russian troops.

The text of the official statement follows:

"On the Struma the British artillery bombarded the enemy encampments.

"In the direction of Jenimah a Bulgarian column was taken under the fire of our batteries and was dispersed with heavy losses.

"At the foot of Mt. Beles and on the Vardar there was patrol activity and instrument surrounding.

"On the Serbian front the enemy did not renew his attacks against Kalinadalan.

"A few elements of trenches taken by the Bulgars at this point cost the latter heavy losses, thanks to the stubborn resistance of the Serbians. On our left wing two attacks by the Bulgarians against our positions east and west of Florina were stifled in the violent fire of the Franco-Russian troops.

"Our aviators bombarded Kenali, southeast of Monastir."

Austrians in Drive to Retake Gorizia

By International News Service.

Rome, Sept. 28.—Austria has begun a new offensive in an attempt to regain Gorizia. The Isonzo town is under bombardment by the Austrian heavy artillery and, according to today's War Office statement, "a few shells fell into the city." On the whole Isonzo front a violent artillery battle rages, General Cadorna's troops repulsed an Austrian attack on the new Italian positions on the summit of Mount Sief.

The official report follows:

"The enemy's artillery was very active at Limone, between the Avisaca and Vancl-Cimon valleys.

"On the Asiago plateau our infantry raided and destroyed a strong Austrian entrenchment.

"In the upper Cordevole the enemy attacked our new positions on the summit of Mount Sief. He was repulsed with very heavy losses.

"On the rest of the front there was artillery activity.

"A few shells fell into Gorizia."

Greek Censorship Is Abolished

Berlin, via Sayville wireless, Sept. 28.—The Greek minister to Germany has officially informed the Foreign Office of the abolition of the Greek censorship. He said that the Greek government consequently declines responsibility for all news from Greece.

Cable dispatches from Athens via London last week stated that the allies have taken complete charge of the news censorship in Greece.

SUBMARINE SINKS 3 MORE VESSELS

London, Sept. 28.—Germany's latest burst of submarine activity continues unabated. A dispatch to Lloyds from Cerwiek today reported the destruction of two more vessels, one a neutral. They were the British ship Stathe and the Swedish ship Regulus.

A later dispatch to Lloyds reported that part of the crew of the British steamer Thurso, 1,244 tons, has been landed and that it is believed the ship is sinking. The Thurso hailed from Hull.

BRITISH PUSH AHEAD; LOSSES SLIGHT

By FRANK TEUSON,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

London, Sept. 28.—The extraordinary smallness of the losses suffered by the British in their great victory at Thiepval and Combles on the Somme front was the feature of the official report issued by the War Office today. There were small advances last night, and the British are now only 500 yards from Le Transloy.

The text of the official statement follows:

"During the night our line was advanced at various points between Martinpuich and Gueudecourt. Outposts were established west and southwest of Vacquerie Ambove, within 500 yards of the village. On our left our new front has been consolidated on the ridge northeast of Thiepval.

"A battalion of enemy infantry, with a transport train, was caught under fire of our artillery in the fighting of the past few days we were singularly economical of life, and our losses were small compared with the importance of our gains. Our total casualties were not more than twice the number of enemy prisoners. One division which had an especially difficult task allotted to it, took as many prisoners as it sustained casualties."

French Repulse Verdun Attacks

By CHARLES F. HERTELLI,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, Sept. 28.—German troops in Verdun front, renewed their efforts to recapture Fleury last night, but were repulsed, the War Office reported in its official communication today.

The German Crown Prince also flung his legions against the French position at Thiaumont Work, a mile northwest of Fleury, but there, too, the French held their ground.

There was no infantry action on that section of the Somme front held by the French.

The text of the official report follows:

"On the Somme our batteries energetically continued their bombardment of the German defence works. There was no infantry actions during the night.

"Early last night a strong German attack on the Fleury front (northeast of Verdun) met with bloody check from our machine guns and asphalt of fire.

"Everywhere else the night was calm."

Slavs in Big Battle Over German Hangars.

By International News Service.

Petrograd, Sept. 28.—A big air fight over the German aerodroms at Lake Angern, in which warring planes and gas planes took part, was reported by the Russian War Office today.

The official statement told of numerous German attacks and admitted that the Russian advance in Volhynia is being carried out with determined assaults. The statement follows:

"West of Riga and southeast of Pinsk small detachments of enemy advanced posts attacks all were repulsed. In the region of Honory, Svinuchi and Korytnica stubborn counter attacks are hindering our advance. Our battle planes and aeroplanes bombed the energy aerodrome at Lake Angern. They engaged in combat twenty enemy machines and also land batteries. One of our aeroplanes was lost."

In America, and Mrs. Di Cola's statement that Di Cola was the father of the boy which died, but is not the father of Antonio Bova, the Waltham barber who has figured prominently in the tragedy, and who she acknowledges is the other son.

3—The statement by Attorney Malato that for four years prior to the murder young Bova had been paid considerable sums of money, on one occasion $700, by his mother, but that her refusal to pay any more despite his frequent requests, preceded the denunciation in open meeting of Di Cola by Bova.

5—The discovery that, when at the bedside of Di Cola in the hospital she learned that he was dying, "Mrs. Di Cola" screamed that he call a "notary" and provide for her so that she "would not be in the streets," and that Di Cola then made a will leaving her $3,200 in cash, jewelry and furniture and providing that she be paid $100 a month.

6—The disclosure that the assassination of Di Cola prevented his marriage to "Mrs. Di Cola" after she had obtained a divorce from her peasant-husband, as the marriage was to take place at the home of a close friend of Di Cola in New York during the trip of the couple that had been planned to start the day following the tragedy. Di Cola realizing that a marriage in Boston would make public that "Mrs. Di Cola" up to that time had not been his wife.

7—The announcement that "Mrs. Di Cola" today had decided not to contest the will, after learning that she could not legally claim a widow's third, and that she would be provided for exactly as Di Cola wished, despite the use of the word "wife" in the will which might have provided a technical legal point on which the will could be broken by those opposed to her receiving any of Di Cola's wealth.

8—The possibility that Bova may seek to establish that he is really Di Cola's son and not the son of Antonio Bova Conti, whom "Mrs. Di Cola" married when her love for Di Cola drew down upon him the anger of his aristocratic father, and that Bova may seek to establish a right to part of Di Cola's property.

9—Search of the personal and private letters and documents in Di Cola's office in the market district, under the direction of Attorney Malato, in an effort to find evidence that may throw light on the identity of Di Cola's murderer.

$5,000 REWARD OFFERED.

Attorney Samuel L. Bailen and Judge Frank Levaroni, attorneys for the Old Colony Trust Company, administrators under the will, declined today to give any information on the case or to be interviewed.

The hunt for Di Cola's assassin took on a more determined and serious aspect than before following the arrival of Attorney Malato. He announced that relatives and friends of Di Cola were determined to bring the murderer to justice, and that this determination prompted the offer of a $5,000 reward, which will be paid for information leading to the arrest and indictment of the assassin.

It was announced that an important reason for the intention to capture the murderer was to demonstrate to Italians throughout the country that "blackhand" crimes cannot escape justice. Attorney Malato is well-known to Italian-Americans as the organizer of the Whitehand Society, an organization founded for the purpose of fighting the so-called Blackhand Society.

Attorney Malato declared today that his severe questioning of "Mrs. Di Cola," despite her weakened condition, was prompted by his earnest desire to get to the bottom of the mystery. He said that despite his inquisition she insisted that she could not identify Di Cola's assailant because she fell with Di Cola when he was shot and turned around only to see a receding figure running away.

"LOVE EPISODE SUBLIME."

"The love episode that runs through the lives of Di Cola and the woman who lived with him for so many years is sublime, despite disregard of the laws of convention," said Attorney Malato.

For the first time he revealed to the AMERICAN the real details of how she sacrificed herself by marrying a peasant so that Di Cola should not be disinherited by his aristocratic and wealthy father, Mr. Malato was born in the same town in Italy as Di Cola and has been on close friendly relations with the family since he, too, came to the United States.

"When Di Cola was nineteen, a beautiful sixteen-year-old girl entered the Di Cola home as a domestic," said Attorney Malato. "They fell deeply in love with each other and their relations became intimate. Their infatuation and intimacy became known to Di Cola's father, a proud and haughty aristocrat, and after many stormy scenes, he forced his son to leave the house because he refused to cease his love and attentions to Antonina Re, which was the name of the girl.

WEDS PEASANT.

"It was then that the girl demonstrated the noble, self-sacrificing nature of her love. Rather than see Di Cola disinherited, she declared she would marry the first man available if Di Cola would take back his son. The man chosen was Antonio Bova-Conti, a peasant of low mental calibre.

"There were again stormy scenes in the home of the Di Colas. The young lieutenant could not give up the girl, and twenty-four years ago he came to the United States alone to prepare for the later elopement.

"He was without money, and went to work carrying a basket and peddling in the streets. He pinched and scraped and saved every cent and dollar he could. In a year he went back to Italy and returned to the United States with the woman who lived with him from that time on as "Mrs. Di Cola."

LOVE AND DEVOTION.

"She brought with her two children. They went to live in Pittsburgh. At that time young Bova was about five years old, and the other boy about two years younger. They placed the boy she states is the son of Bova with an aunt. One or two years later the other son died.

"Hand in hand they struggled upwards. She did her part nobly and Di Cola established himself in the community in a position that might correspond with the aristocratic station he would have held in his own country had he never eloped with her. It is a beautiful story of love and devotion, despite its unconventionality and defiance of the laws of morality.

WINS BRIDE IN BORDER ROMANCE

Another army romance of the border, of a beautiful Southern girl and a young graduate of the Harvard Medical School, was brought to light by the return to Boston this week of the Massachusetts Field Hospital Company No. 1.

Congratulations are being extended to Lieutenant Sumner C. Andrews of Gloucester, who is attached to the Hospital Company, and his wife, who was Miss Hilda Simmons of Waldo, Ark., the daughter of a wealthy merchant of that city. She is twenty-two.

Miss Simmons was visiting her sister, Mrs. W. H. Byrd of El Paso, when the Hospital Company arrived there about three months ago. The Byrd bungalow was directly opposite the officers' quarters. Miss Simmons and the lieutenant met. It was a case of love at sight. They were secretly wed.

Shortly after the ceremony the Hospital Company was ordered back to Boston and on September 19, just two weeks after they had been married, Lieutenant Andrews left El Paso and his bride.

Mrs. Andrews has returned to her home at Waldo and will join her husband in October. Lieutenant Andrews will resume his work on the City Hospital staff of physicians. He graduated from the Harvard Medical School in '15.

"I would much rather have stayed down there where the mercury plays around the century at noon and where the troops eat alkali dust with their meals," said Lieutenant Andrews as he told of the two-weeks' bride he left behind.

U. S. Exportation of Gasoline.

Washington, Sept. 28.—Figures just made public show an exportation of 41,936,846 gallons of gasoline during August. This is an increase of more than 12,000,000 gallons over August, 1915.

FIVE ESCAPE FROM JAIL AT CRANSTON

Providence, Sept. 28.—Five prisoners at the Rhode Island State Farm sawed bars early today and escaped. It is said more than 100 have escaped this year. State officials say a thorough investigation should be ordered. It is whispered that resignations will be forthcoming. The State farm is in Cranston, where inmates serving up to three years are held.

O'DONNELL WILL HEARING CLOSED

The O'Donnell will case contest, hearings on which have been held in the Probate Court in East Cambridge all week, was brought to a close and taken under advisement today by Judge McIntyre.

Following the morning recess Attorney Scanlon and Flaherty, representing the contestants, and Attorneys Nay and Bates, joint executors of the will of Mrs. Emma E. O'Donnell, held a fifteen minute conference at the bench with Judge McIntyre.

Attorney Scharton requested the judge to issue a certificate permitting the case to go to a jury.

The judge took the request under advisement. He has not yet made his decision as to whether the will should be allowed or broken.

Dr. Louis P. O'Donnell, who took the stand yesterday for cross-examination by Attorney Scharton, was again on the stand today.

He was questioned at length by Attorney Scharton concerning his dealings with Mrs. Bostwick prior to their marriage.

FEARED A CONTEST.

He said that Mrs. Bostwick had spoken to him of her brother, George Otte, and was afraid that he would institute a contest over the will after her death.

Dr. O'Donnell testified that he met Otte three or four times and that Otte exhibited no hostility towards him. He said that any hostility shown was directed towards Mrs. Bostwick.

"Had Mrs. O'Donnell exhibited any degree of jealousy that was noticeable to you?" Scharton asked.

"No, I had not noticed it," Dr. O'Donnell replied.

"Had Mrs. Bostwick by her conduct led you to believe she was in love with you?"

"I think I knew she wanted to marry me."

The witness testified that he had deliberated considerably as to whether or not he should marry Mrs. Bostwick and that he did not really want to marry her although he realized the subsequent advantages to him which would result after marriage.

He admitted a change came over him in the spring of 1915 and that that change made him feel as though he should marry her.

A number of things and incidents had contributed towards bringing about this change, he said.

Asked if he had any control over Mrs. Bostwick he said, "She was not a pliable woman."

ARRANGED REALTY SALE.

The witness was questioned by Attorney Nay in regard to the time Mrs. Bostwick went to live at Dr. O'Donnell's home.

Witness explained that in the summer of 1915 Mrs. Bostwick was spending a vacation in Connecticut, and that she had arranged with a real estate man to sell her property at the time O'Donnell said he would be compelled with making his own address.

NEW STATION TO RAISE MILK COST

The new milk receiving station which the Boston & Maine Railroad is erecting in East Somerville will greatly increase the cost of transportation to the milk contractors, according to a statement issued today by the B. P. Hood Company. The contractors now have their milk delivered to them at the stations near their own plant. When the new receiving station is established they will have to truck their milk from East Somerville.

LODEN cloth is a soft, silky fabric with a long "nap" that makes coats that are warm but not heavy, that are rain-resisting (cravenette proofed), that keep their shape well—that make a coat as good for motoring as for dress-up.

Before the war, we imported Loden cloth from Austria, where it was made in the Tyrol mountains, under a secret process; that source is closed so that we have had American makers try their hand.

WHEAT AND MEAT EXPORTS DECREASE

Washington, Sept. 28.—Decreases in the exportation of wheat and meat products for August, as compared with the same month a year ago, are indicated in a bulletin issued by the Department of Commerce. The exports of wheat were 11,692,684 bushels, as compared with 16,722,124 in 1915. Fresh beef exports fell from more than 12,000,000 pounds in August, to slightly more than 4,000,000 pounds.

Exports of breadstuffs, cottonseed oil, food animals, meat and dairy products, cotton and mineral oils for August, amounted to $186,857,495, compared with $79,210,263 for the same month last year.

BOY OF SIX KILLED BY FALL FROM A SEE-SAW

Machiasport, Me., Sept. 28.—Peter, the six-year-old son of John Farris, of Machias, while at play, fell from a see-saw plank striking the back of his head on a rock, causing instant death.

CANDIDATE MANSFIELD RAPS DEMOCRATIC PARTY LEADERS

A fight within the Democratic party was indicated today by the report that Frederick W. Mansfield, the Democratic nominee, had declared war against the organization.

Chairman O'Leary of the Democratic State Committee, by way of comment on the report, remarked that Mansfield can "have my head if he wants it."

Mr. Mansfield's reported remarks were as follows:

"Neither the Democratic State Committee, nor any other party committee, has any business whatever to take sides prior to the primary, in behalf of any candidate.

"It was a flagrant usurpation of the rights of the people for the leaders of the state committee to undertake to dictate the ticket.

"Apparently some people can never learn how dangerous it is to run things under machine rule, or to try to convince the great mass of the voters that government by the few is better than government by the many.

"I was not deceived by the profuse congratulations and promises of enthusiastic support from certain party leaders, who only a few days ago had been publicly, as well as privately uttering statements derogatory to the man now chosen to lead the Democratic party.

"I take those things for what they are worth and am competent to run my own campaign, just as I have run it so far."

"If Mr. Mansfield wants my head he can have it," said O'Leary.

He vigorously denied having received any request for resignation from Mr. Mansfield.

"I don't believe he said what is reported," said the chairman. "I have been elected by the mandate of the people just as much as Mr. Mansfield has, and chosen chairman by the unanimous vote of the committee.

"Mr. Mansfield is too good a Democrat not to recognize the will of the party in this case as well as in his own. He will find no more loyal supporter anywhere than in me; but if he wishes to run his own campaign I am perfectly willing to step aside.

"Of course it is not at all unusual for a candidate of strong and independent personality to want to manage things personally. Notable instances have occurred in the Republican as well as the Democratic party. Too much individuality, and too much independence, however, has not always met with success.

"A striking instance was that of Congressman Gardner, who as the Republican gubernatorial candidate, pulled the G. O. P. down to third place, for the first time in its history.

"Whatever others may have stated concerning Mr. Mansfield, I have never given utterance to a word of criticism. When I signed the Vote manifesto, I was influenced only by the question of expediency, in accord with the opinion of party leaders who have been given the confidence of the voters for years, all over the State as well as in the city.

"It has been customary to hold such conferences and to make recommendations to the voters. Now that they have voted down the recommendations, that's good enough for me. Nobody'll work harder for Mansfield than I will, no matter what happens."

Boston Lobster Smack Seized by Canadians

Halifax, N. S., Sept. 28.—The American lobster smack E. MacNichol of Boston, was seized by the Fisheries patrol boat "F" and taken into Yarmouth.

The commander of the patrol boat charged that the Americans were fishing within the three-mile limit.

Information regarding the seizure has been sent to Washington by United States Consul Balch, and local officials have notified the government authorities at Ottawa.

The captain of the E. MacNichol asserted that he was within his rights in fishing at the point where the vessel was seized.

BAY STATE BOYS HEAR NEW PLANS

By BERT FORD.

El Paso, Tex., Sept. 28.—Orders have been changed again. Instead of the fifteen-day hike to the Apache reservation beyond Alamagordo, N. M., planned Tuesday, the Massachusetts troops, as part of General Morton's Tenth Division, will be sent to Fort Seldon and will probably not be kept out more than five days.

It is rumored that the Pennsylvania troops suffered so because of the lack of water on their hike that the journey mapped out for the Morton division was abandoned. The dangerous hike would have led over deserts and mountains devoid of water.

The watering carts were found to be inadequate to supply 26,000 men, showing what Uncle Sam would be confronted by if at war. With present equipment the sending of National Guard over long stretches of arid country has been found a big problem.

The majority of the enlisted men are not becoming the change of program. They are now interested in just one thing—home. In the infantry regiments today there was a chorus, the keynote of which was "We want to go back home."

Dispatches from Washington to the effect that 6,000 National Guard will be hurried to the border and 18,000 sent home interested the men.

How You Can Remove Every Trace of Hair

(Toilet Talks)

A stiff paste made with some powdered delatone and water and spread on a hairy surface about 2 minutes will, when removed, take every trace of hair with it. The skin should then be washed to free it from the remaining delatone. No harm can result from this treatment, but be sure it is delatone you get and you will not be disappointed.—Advertisement.

PAID $10,000 TO BLACKMAIL BAND

Chicago, Sept. 28.—Investigation of a new blackmail plot in which, it is alleged, a wealthy Iowa man was fleeced out of $10,000 by the "million dollar blackmail syndicate" has been started by Federal officials.

The Iowa man, a widower, is said to have been duped by a young woman and a man who posed as a government agent and "arrested" the Iowan on charge of violating the Mann law.

A small yellow book in which the names of Chicago men of wealth and social pretensions were written has been turned over to State's Attorney Haynes for investigation.

The book, according to an inscription on its cover, was the property of Miss Buda Godman, who was at liberty on bonds in connection with the alleged blackmailing of E. R. West of Chicago and New York.

Detectives said the "yellow book" was a record of the amount of wine purchased by a number of well-known Chicagoans in their escapades. The names, detectives said, were used by members of the blackmail syndicate who demanded money from the men under threats of exposing them.

Subpoenas for the appearance of Mrs. Regina Klipper, the Philadelphia divorcee and victim of the alleged blackmailers, and Frank Crocker, a member of the band, who confessed at a hearing in the blackmail case before United States Commissioner Foote, have been issued.

HUNTING MORE DRUG SMUGGLERS

Customs inspectors who worked up the case against the seven alleged rum smugglers in the federal courts yesterday were today seeking evidence against other persons who, it is asserted, were concerned in the plot.

Drugs to the value of $100,000—chiefly cocaine and heroin in tablet form—have been smuggled in from Canada, it is charged. The drugs were brought by automobile usually, it is said, and the automobiles crossed the border at isolated points, following lonely roads, far from the customs posts.

DISCOVERY IS IMPORTANT.

Customs men agree that this is the biggest drug smuggling fraud ever uncovered in this country.

The seven men indicted were George Provanzilis, alias George Brown of Lynn; George Wintner, alias George Brown, Jimmy Wintner and Jimmy Winters of Boston; Solomon Cohen, alias Sam Harris and "Bully," of Boston; Theodore Deutschman of Boston; Julius H. Rosberg of Boston; Louis Rothansky, alias Lou Roth, Lou Rosen and Jacob Lawrence, and Keith Vaughn, alias Keith Harrison, Kenneth Verity and Jack Harrison, both of New York.

The two New York men are in jail in that city, according to the customs inspector. The five Boston men have already been arrested by federal authorities in this city and are out on bail.

DOCTOR INDICTED.

Another indictment involving the drug law was returned, but it is separate from the conspiracy indictment. The defendant is Dr. Joseph R. Twadelle of Boston, who is charged with facilitating the transportation of smuggled heroin and morphine. He pleaded not guilty and Judge Morton held him under $1,500 bail or trial.

Customs Inspectors Owen McKenna and Thomas F. Finnegan who are engaged in the work of running down customs violations in New England, were assigned to the case in this city, and Customs Inspectors E. K. Gardner and E. C. Lewis, who do similar work in New York, were given those York assignment.

kins and Westford show:

QUERY BLINDING AT STATE RANGE

An investigation of defective ammunition which is alleged to have caused two serious accidents to Boy State troopers engaged in target practice at the Wakefield range will be ordered by Adjutant General Pearson.

Defective ammunition is believed to have cost Corporal Thomas E. Fallon of the Eleventh Company, Coast Artillery Corps, the sight of his right eye.

While Fallon was practicing at the range, a cartridge exploded in the firing chamber, tearing out the breech of his rifle and forcing the breech bolt directly against his eye. He was rushed to the Eye and Ear Infirmary in Boston where urgent treatment was given him, but the surgeons say the eye cannot be saved.

A second explosion while Private Thomas First Corps Cadets, was practicing at the range. Thomas was badly cut upon the forehead and he suffered from the shock.

It is reported that a series of similar accidents occurred during a tour of duty of the Sixth Regiment at Edgartown last month.

Colonel E. Dwight Fullerton decided to call off the annual rifle competition of the Coast Artillery Corps which was scedduled to begin today.

When the Bay State troops left for the border they took practically all the available ammunition with them, and the War Department ordered the state to make requisition for 100,000 rounds for use by troops that remained at home. About 10,000 rounds have been supplied by a Massachusetts concern.

Are Your Children's Feet Happy?

Children's shoes must conform to the shape of the foot.

Children's feet must not be cramped in tight, poor-fitting shoes.

The toes should have plenty of room to wiggle inside the shoe—and that does not mean that the shoe must be large.

A baby develops its feet by wiggling its toes. A child (the grown up baby) should have almost as much freedom.

DEFEND ATTENDANTS ACCUSED OF KILLING

Three attendants of the Medfield State Hospital were arraigned in the District Court of northern Norfolk at Dedham charged with causing the death of Camillo Strazzullo, an Italian patient, thirty-five years old, who died under peculiar circumstances.

The three men placed under arrest were Frank Hale, Wesley R. Linton and Thomas McGirr.

The arrests followed a visit to the court house at Dedham by Dr. Edward French, the superintendent of the institution, who made the complaint.

An inquest was held at the morgue connected with the institution which lasted several hours. The medical examiner sent his report to District Attorney Barker. It was said by Superintendent French that the medical examiner had discovered enough that justified holding the three attendants.

STRUGGLE WITH MADMAN.

According to the information, Strazzullo started trouble at the supper table Tuesday evening and was taken from the dining room. Hale was passing by and Strazzullo made a grab for him about the lower part of the body. Hale struggled with the insane man. Hale shouted for help and Linton and McGrath came to his assistance. The three of them grappled with the man and they struggled for some time up and down the room, and not until Strazzullo was finally placed in a room did he quit fighting.

The three attendants noticed that suddenly the patient became weak and exhausted and they notified the head attendant, Smith, who came to see the man's condition. Smith called Dr. Troxwell, and the man died before he could give him any assistance.

What the autopsy disclosed could not be learned, but Dr. French stated that cause for holding the men had been discovered.

WAITING FOR AUTOPSY.

Dr. French said: "I am waiting to learn what the autopsy will show, and not until then will I be able to state the cause of the man's death.

"I notified the District Attorney and I sent for Medical Examiner Quinn. I then went to Dedham and made the complaint against the three young men. The Medfield police arrested the young men here at the hospital and they were placed in the lockup and will be taken to Dedham court today."

Several attendants when seen stated that Strazzullo was a very dangerous man and were high in their praise of the three young men arrested. An attendant in the ward with Strazzullo said: "That patient was the worst in the hospital and caused considerable trouble and annoyance to us. He has threatened us more than once and often made the remark that he would get us. Not long ago he pulled a lead pipe from the sink in the washroom and was just about to let an attendant have it on the head when he was overpowered. Our lives are in danger all the time, but still it makes no difference how much we are assaulted, but when a patient is handled a little rough there is much talk.

"This patient was so powerful that he would take a plate between his hands and pull it right apart. He would tear up his clothes and many times he tore up three suits of clothes in a day. Such a man as he should be placed in a padded cell and not allowed to mingle with the less dangerous patients. Oftentimes one man is placed in a room in charge of two of the most dangerous men, while the less violent ones are taken out doors. That is no way to protect us. What chance has an attendant got if those ten men should attack him? Nothing; he would be killed before he knew it."

HOMES OF RICH LOOTED OF GEMS

Warren estate. Families of these persons heard no automobiles after 10:30 Saturday night.

Private detectives employed by the Warrens are at work on the robbery. There are no police in the town of Essex.

The Warren estate is ideally situated for a robbery. It lies three-quarters of a mile off the main highway on a hill. The house has about thirty rooms, is two and one-half stories high and has a veranda on four sides.

The burglar entered through a lower window, passe dthrough the library, climbed the stairs and ransacked the rooms of Mrs. Warren, filling her jewel cases in the different drawers.

The morning after the robbery Mrs. Warren visited families living on Apple street at the foot of the private road to the estate and inquired if the neighbors had heard an automobile go towards the Warren house after midnight.

This se mtheft was followed today by report of two other big robberies committed this Summer and all attributed to the same man.

Boston and Lynn police and private detectives are working on the case. The suspect is a negro and a skilful crackman.

Besides the $15,000 Warren robbery, the man is believed to be responsible for the theft of extremely valuable diamonds and other jewels from a home in Manchester and for a $50,000 "job" in the western part of the State.

Only in the case of the Warren robbery have the facts been made public. Mrs. Warren was Helen Thomas before her marriage, and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Washington B. Thomas.

The most valuable object taken from the Warren home was a large first class emerald, in old-fashioned setting, surrounded by diamonds, on a little gold chain, valued at $10,000.

For information leading to the arrest of the robber or robbers in this case a $5,000 reward is offered.

Other articles stolen were the following:

Diamond bowknot pin, old-fashioned silver mounting.

Jeling sapphires set in Indian enamel or gold chain.

Turquoise studs, four large stones, gold mounting (slightly chipped).

Aquamarines, two stones set in pearls and diamonds (pin pendant).

Long seed pearl rope, tassel ends.

Two enamel buckles set in gold (marked "Dreicer").

Old-fashioned gold watch, open gold face, gold chain and locket with photo; marked "H. T. from H. B." Marked on back of watch "Helen Thomas, Christmas, 1897, from her grandmother."

Long amethyst chain, mounted in gold.

Short amethyst chain, mounted in gold; amethyst heart.

Long string of red coral.

Pearl watch, open face, with diamonds, on long pearl chain.

Pink topaz, with diamond mounting, on platinum chain.

Small pearl ring, three pearls.

Small diamond and emerald ring.

Pearl bar-pin.

Silver watch, monogram "H. T."

Gold watch (thin Tiffany Swiss), marked monogram outside "SDW"; marked inside "HTW-SDW, Nov. 28, 1913."

Woman Rescued in Revere Fire

Mrs. Eunice Tyler, aged seventy-five, was rescued today from the burning building at No. 770 Ocean avenue, Revere, of which she is the owner, by F. E. Brooking of the Metropolitan Park police. The fire was started by the explosion of an oil stove over which her daughter, Miss Grace Tyler, was working. Officer Brooking heard her screams and pulled in an alarm. Miss Tyler was burned about the face.

The building is a two-story wooden structure, occupied by the Tyler family on the first floor and by Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Power on the second. During the fire somebody sounded a second alarm.

QUERIED ABOUT FUND.

Mrs. Fox was first questioned about the $50 which she had in her hat in the Summer of 1915 for a coal fund. She was quizzed about this money several times. Major Crowley referred to it as the contributed residence money.

Q—You visited Bert often at East Cambridge jail? A—Yes.

Q—Talked about the case with him? A—Yes, but I've tried to forget it.

Q—Did you ask him if he took that $50? A—Yes.

Q—What did he say? A—He said, "No."

Mrs. Fox added "Bert could always get money when I had it."

Q—When did you first learn Bert was making excuses to get away from you? A—Why, I never knew it.

TOLD BY POLICE.

The question was repeated in another form and Mrs. Fox said the State police had spoken of it.

Major Crowley kept recurring to the "$50 coal fund."

"I didn't think Bert took it," said Mrs. Fox. "I knew someone must have. It was gone."

Q—And that was the misunderstanding you had when he went away in October, 1915? A—Yes.

She was asked several times whether she recalled that, on the morning after the murder, she saw a bank-puppy with the front paws torn off. Mrs. Fox did not remember.

Sox Seek Another Win

Mays to Face the Yanks

By JOHN W. MORAN, JR.

Having demonstrated an abundance of class in yesterday's session the Red Sox are out today to complete the task of eliminating the White Hosed brethren and those formerly ferocious Tygers. Yesterday a half game advance helped materially, and if the western clubs live up to the form expected of them there can't be much to it but a clinching process today.

It's rather hard guessing just who Carrigan will use in the fun this afternoon, but figuring the manner in which he worked his men on the road it would appear as though Carl Mays was due to hurl.

Mays was in yesterday, but hurled to only five men in a trifle more than an inning. That shouldn't bother him the least bit. Donovan will oppose with either Mogridge or Shawkey, the former a portsider of some ability.

The Sox yesterday got off to a highly auspicious start in their last home stay and one which served to tickle each and every one of the 15,000 odd "fans" who assembled. They convinced skeptics that nothing can now prevent them from landing the flag in the junior league. That nothing stuff don't go though, if perchance anyone happens to smash up a few pitching wings or dim one or two batting optics.

WANTS RED SOX DAY.

Being desirous of having Boston "fans" show their appreciation for the fine fight the Red Sox have made this season, Charley Frasca, president of the Newsboys' Union, comes forth with the suggestion that Lannin-Carrigan and the bunch be honored on Saturday with a Red Sox Day. It's something novel and won't cost a person any more than the price of admission.

Frasca suggests that all the "fans" and "fannesses" who can flock to the park Saturday afternoon and show the club that the town appreciates their work. Frasca wants the biggest gathering that ever assembled in the park to be on hand. He suggests that all those who are still receiving Saturday afternoons off be on hand to aid in the celebration. The idea is commendable and the "fans" should follow it up.

Yesterday Presidents Lannin and Haughton of the Red Sox and Braves met and discussed the World's Series matter thoroughly. Though the Red Sox president hasn't said anything about it yet, it now seems absolutely certain that the local games will be played at Braves Field. Whatever obstacles there may have been separating the pair have been smoothed out and the greater seating capacity is now assured.

SOX CONFIDENT OF WIN.

It may be that President Lannin doesn't want to jinx the club's chances by discussing the big series until such time as the Sox have clinched the American League title. It's a moral certainty though, regardless of his silence, that he feels as confident as any man on the club that success is his once more. The writer is well aware of a feeling of confidence on the part of a number of the players.

Early yesterday the club heard that Byron B. Johnson had seen fit to lift the suspension which has caused Heinie Wagner to be off the field during several of the recent games. Heinie was on the coaching lines and was at the third corner when the old squeeze went through so well. Jack Barry was also in uniform, but didn't play nor attempt to do so. It's going to be some few days more before the Worcester boy gets into the inning again.

There is yet considerable question as to whether or not he will be able to play in the big clash. Some folks think he will and still others think he won't. It's a moral certainty he will if his hand feels at all well. Nobody cha'ges more as a result of being out of the game than this same Barry. Yesterday he spent most of the day on the coaching lines and had not a little to do with the club's success.

CARRIGANS GOING STRONG.

Yesterday, except for one or two instances, the Sox displayed an exceptionally fine brand of baseball. On one or two occasions there were fielding slips and one of them hurt some for it made possible the deciding run. That is, Hooper by missing the ball around a bit, allowed Baker to reach third, from which position he easily counted on the squeeze. Had Barry handled the pill perfectly J. Franklin would have been held to second.

The club convinced one who hadn't seen them in action very much this summer that they are entitled to a position of eminence in the league. While there might be one or two opportunities to question their real playing strength, there can be no questioning the gameness of the outfit. They are game from top to bottom and will fight to the last ditch to save themselves from defeat.

Sox Good as In; Braves Driving

By JOHN W. MORAN, JR.

This is unquestionably the biggest day baseball has seen in years. In the National League the four clubs that might be considered as having a chance for the pennant are engaged in battle. On the result of the games being played today, tomorrow and Saturday may depend the final decision in the old league.

And in the meantime the Red Sox here in Boston are battling to clinch their hold on the top rung of the American League ladder. Their principal opponents are in battle array on Western fields, and it may be that ere the sun sets tonight the Lannin-Carrigan entry will have settled beyond a doubt who shall wear the American League pennant as a result of this year's fight.

WORK CUT OUT FOR THEM.

One is forced to go back a great many years to find a race in which conditions prevailed such as those in the National League. The four clubs that have any chance at all are Eastern clubs, and today they engage one another. Philadelphia, barking at Brooklyn's heels, but a game and a half away, clashes with the leaders way out in Flatbush. Up near the Harlem River on a field which is shadowed by elevated structures and Coogan's Bluff the Braves tackle the Giants.

The Giants the Braves go against today are a mighty outfit. With twenty-three consecutive wins to their credit the Stallings-led army has some battle on its hand. But it's a battle that means much to the Braves. It's the sort of a battle that will send them out to fight to the end of land. If they don't land a majority of the five games that are scheduled for them between today and Saturday, they'll hardly finish in third place, much less win the pennant.

ALEXANDER TO WORK.

Whereas there was a chance a day or two ago for Philadelphia to go out in front by landing a single game, today the best the Phillies can do, provided they trounce the Robins, is to draw up to within a percentage point or two of the lead. Philadelphia is strongly favored for the win, inasmuch as Pat Moran has stated he will pitch Alexander today. Robinson will probably oppose "Aleck" with Larry Cheney, and a fine pitching battle is due.

The Braves, by smashing through the Giants, while the Robins are walloping the Phillies, can advance to within half a game of second place and three games of the lead. Were the Robins to lose, they'd have only a point advantage on the Phillies and two games on the Braves. The Braves, by losing both, would remain but one game in front of the Giants, and their mathematical chance of winning the pennant would be greatly decreased.

SOX WILL TRY TO CINCH IT.

A Red Sox win today, coupled with a Tyger loss, completely eliminates that team, and were the White Sox to lose, their chances are materially lessened. The Sox can lose half their games and yet land ahead of either of the two teams. The standard in the two leagues today are as follows:

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

	To Play.	W.	L.	Pct.
Red Sox	4	88	60	.595
White Sox	4	86	64	.573
Tygers	3	86	64	.573

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

	To Play.	W.	L.	Pct.
Robins	5	90	57	.612
Phillies	9	87	57	.604
Braves	11	84	58	.592

The figures show the Red Sox to be three games ahead of the White Sox and four and a half ahead of the Tygers. In the National League, Brooklyn leads Philadelphia by a game and a half, thanks to a win while the Phillies were resting. The Braves' win yesterday resulted in a half game gain on the Phillies. The Braves are three games better off than the Giants.

DODGERS TO FACE ALEX

Brooklyn and Phillies Open Three-Game Series Today in Fight for League Lead.

By FRANK G. MENKE.

New York, Sept. 28.—All the roadways led to Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, today. It is there the Dodgers and the Phillies begin a three-game series that is expected to decide which club shall defend the honor of the Tener circuit in the coming World Series.

Of Hercules Ebbets after checking up the reserved seat sales, predicted that three games would draw close to 50,000 "fans." It was estimated that today's crowd would be close to park capacity.

The betting is even money on today's game, with 6 to 5 being laid in some quarters that the Dodgers will take the getaway.

ALEX PITCHES TODAY.

Upon the mighty wing of Grover Alexander, premier pitcher of the older league, hang the hopes of the Phillies in today's struggle.

He has had a rest since he pitched that double-header last Saturday and is said to be in the best condition of the year.

Larry Cheney, the most dependable hurler in the Robinson crowd, probably will oppose Alex. Larry, too, has had a long rest and his wing is in superb condition. Rixey, who has found it rather easy to beat the Dodgers this year, will tackle them tomorrow and Alex will go back at them on Saturday in the curtain game.

Marquard undoubtedly will pitch for the Dodgers on Friday, with Pfeffer working Saturday.

Offensively the Dodgers have a bulge. They are hitting .260, while the Phillies are around .250. The Brooklynites have two men clubbing beyond .300, while the Phillies haven't any. The Dodgers are not very speedy on the bases, but the Phillies are slower. The Dodgers have stolen about twenty more bases than the invaders.

DODGERS DRIVE BEST.

And so, as the teams prepare for battle it would seem that the pitching "edge" of the Phillies is offset by the greater offensive power of the Dodgers.

Luck will probably count in the ultimate result.

CORNELL IN SCRIMMAGE.

Ithaca, N. Y., Sept. 28.—The first scrimmages of the year and the earliest on record here were staged by the Big Red Cornell eleven here. The first and second team fought for five minutes and each made a ten-yard gain.

PUBLIC IS BARRED FROM THE ARMY GAME SATURDAY

West Point, N. Y., Sept. 28.—Followers of the Army football team will have to be content with reading newspaper reports of the Cadets' opening gridiron game here next Saturday with Lebanon Valley, it was announced here.

The public will not be permitted to witness the game, owing to the quarantine restrictions, which are still in force as a precaution against infantile paralysis. Admittance to the military reservation has been by special permit and on urgent business only.

Automobiles have been held up at the entrances to the reservation, river boats have made no landings since early in August and passengers getting off trains at the railroad stations are turned back unless supplied with a special business permit to go up the hill.

Not a case of paralysis has developed here thus far and if the situation in nearby districts continues to improve restrictions against visitors to the post and football field will be removed in the near future.

ANOTHER NATICK EDDIE

Natick, Sept. 28.—Natick High defeated Foxboro High, 54-0. Eddie Donovan, son of "Piper" Donovan, the old-time sprinter, showed up like a chip of the old block. Dwyer also played well for Natick High.

Dorchester Boy New Yale Hero

New Haven, Sept. 28.—Yale's varsity scored three touchdowns in quick succession, all attesting to the brilliant scoring power of Harry Le Gore, who was in uniform for the first time this week.

Le Gore was at his best in the end running game, scoring twice by circling the scrub wing and making the third possible by a forward pass to "Buck" Church.

The second team scored on the varsity in the last ten minutes of play, when Quarterback Chet Lesche, former Dorchester High and Exeter star, skirted right end for thirty yards, and Halfback Carey kicked a field goal from the thirty-yard line.

Bob Bingham returned to practice after several days' absence, and was assigned left halfback on the varsity. Howell Van Nostrand also played his first football this week and was placed at quarterback on the scrub.

PRINCETON BREAKS CAMP

This Ad. is for You

Do you know why I am spending all this money in advertising LORD SALISBURY Cigarettes?

Why it's simply to induce YOU to try them. That's all that advertising can do. It can't make you like them. Your own taste has got to decide that.

But I'm just nervy enough to believe that if you try them once, you'll buy them twice.

Now listen! This is all I'm going to say: The LORD SALISBURY Cigarette is the first and only 100 per cent pure all-Turkish tobacco cigarette to sell for as little money as 15 cents for 20.*

There is no other 100% pure all-Turkish tobacco cigarette on the market that sells for less than a penny apiece.

Consequently—the LORD SALISBURY saves you 25 per cent on your cigarette bill, and gives you quality and quantity.

That's positively enough reason why you should try this cigarette immediately.

Cordially yours,
Ernest J. Goulston

FORWARD PASSING IS O. K.

Harvard Varsity Scores Three Times via That Medium of Attack—Flower Back in Fray.

Harvard's varsity football forces finish their rugged preparation for Saturday's contest with Bates this afternoon, when another head-on scrimmage against the scrubs is due in the Stadium behind closed doors.

Three touchdowns were made in yesterday's scrimmage. "Hank" Flower, who was back at fullback after a day's rest, registered the first score before three minutes of the first period was up. He jumped high in the air, intercepted a forward pass and ran, as only the wing-footed Kansan can, for seventy yards and a touchdown.

Dick Harte, varsity right end, teamed with his fellow Philadelphian, Billy Robinson, for the second touchdown. Harte received a forward pass from Robinson on which he scored after a twenty-yard run.

Flower was the same old speed demon, and the admirers of the Crimson are already hailing him as another Eddie Mahan. He used his feet as well as his legs, and with a few of the rough edges polished up, should prove the star of the Harvard backfield.

HELD HIS JOB BY TAKING MEDICINE

Boston Man Would Have Had to Quit Work if He Had Not Taken Plant Juice.

can only be reached by a systematic treatment. It is true the disorders may be eased with narcotics or the poisonous acids may be neutralized for the time being, but such methods are only temporary at best, and do not even lead to permanent results, for as soon as the effect of the narcotic wears away the sufferer is in precisely the same condition as before.

"There is a standard remedy, Plant Juice, which is a purely herbal preparation, designed for just such ills as stomach liver and kidney disorders. It contains only extracts from purely medicinal plants, and is absolutely free of minerals, narcotics or other injurious poisons. Since its introduction here many people are calling out of gratitude to thank me for what Plant Juice has done for them. The following signed statement was made by Mr. Alfred J. Nuttall, who lives at No. 24 Catawba street, and is employed by one of the largest dyeing firms in this city. He said:

"For eight years I had suffered with indigestion and dyspepsia, and everything I ate would ferment in my stomach and cause gas to form there. I was all bloated and had pains all over my body. Words cannot describe my suffering. I could not sleep at night and lost 10 pounds in weight. I felt so tired out in the mornings that I thought I would have to give up my work altogether, and if I had not started to take Plant Juice would have done so. Since I have taken three bottles of Plant Juice it has put me on my feet again and my stomach is in good condition. I sleep well and have no more aches or pains. When I get up in the morning I feel refreshed and ready for my day's work. Plant Juice has certainly done wonders for me and I am recommending it to everyone."—Advertisement.

PLAYING THE WORLD'S SERIES WITH HUGH S FULLERTON

Here is the fifth of a series of expert articles on the World's series games by Hugh S. Fullerton, the celebrated baseball statistician, in which he compares the first basemen who may take part in the great title contests. Fullerton's World's Series stories will be a feature of the daily and Sunday AMERICAN.

Detroit	508	319	827	508	304	812	496	325	821

The time has arrived at last when we can begin to get down to real comparisons. The elimination of clubs that have been battling so royally for the pennants has arrived and, as we come to the man against man figures, we have a better chance to see the strengths and the weaknesses of the teams in their various positions.

One of the striking things in baseball for many years has been that the National League appears to be able to find competent and even star first basemen any time a club needs one, while the American League trusts have more trouble with this position than with any other. With the exception of Pittsburgh, the National League clubs get stars readily, while some American League outfits have struggled along for years with mediocre guardians of the initial sack.

This season Jake Sisler as a regular first sacker and rather changed the rule, but it is the exception. So, when we come to compare the first basemen of the rival clubs for the world's championship, we discover the National League having the stronger men in that position.

This may prove rather a surprise to some students of the game since we know that the National, after a period of slumping and slipping, is in the process of rebuilding almost all the teams. In time, of course, this will bring them to the level and probably just over the now strong clubs of the American are commencing to go be k.

It happens this way in baseball, because owners are slow and reluctant about letting their good old men go, even when they must know that they are on the chute. About one big leaguer in ten survives, after starting to go back, and the owners hang onto nine hoping they will be the exception.

ROBBY IMPROVED PLAYER.

In the comparisons of the Red Sox and the National League clubs as to their first basemen, however, the Red Sox do not find themselves shown up at all. Hoblitzel is not a great first baseman by any means, not nearly as good a one as he promised to be, when he first broke in at Cincinnati and looked to be another Chase, and l.st year Hobby was a hit of a Joke.

He evidently could not get into the American League manner of playing the game. Neither was Hobby ever strong against left-handed pitching, and he has several other little weaknesses.

A fast bunting club would probably upset him terribly in spite of his agility, as he does not handle balls down the line or make the throws to second as well as do some of the left-handed first basemen. (I said that last Fall, and Bill Phelon promptly accused me of saying Hobby is a left-handed first baseman.)

Imagine my surprise to find Hobby this year playing much improved ball and actually hitting the left-handed pitchers to such an extent at least as to relieve the Boston club of the necessity of changing to Gainer every time a left-hander worked. He does not drive them out of the game, but he has improved a lot—nor may the Boston club have much fear that any of the National League southpaws, who get into the World's Series this Fall, will trouble Hobby very much. They are not producing new Nap Ruckers these days, and Nap is far on his way back.

DAUBERT CLASS AT FIRST.

Jake Daubert figures best of all the first basemen I have to consider upon while the six clubs were struggling for the pennants, and even allowing for the superiority of the Red Sox twirling which he must face over the average pitching he sees in the National, Daubert out-dopes his rivals just as he did against both Detroit and Chicago.

There has been a lot of criticism of Daubert in the past and complaints that he lacks aggressiveness, but Jake keeps right on at the top of the first baseman, hitting at the pace-making level for his entire league and playing the base about as well as anyone. He has some trouble at first naturally, because his team has been one of the wildest and most panicky in the country, playing as steadily as a championship club for several innings, then exploding.

Wild throwing has been one of the features of Brooklyn's play all season, and as a result Daubert has been the chief sufferer—the first baseman always is who he faces a battery in field.

Fred Luderus, when studied in comparison with the American League first basemen, does not appear as weak as he really is. The truth is that a long hit will plated covers a multitude of sins. Luderus is a big, lumbering, flat-footed ball player. He is a very capable man in catching thrown balls, is steady and always on the job, and he is an excellent man at which to heave 'em.

Infielders will tell you that a solid first baseman, always in position, helps them with their throwing, while a fast, quick-moving fellow is apt to put them off in their hurling. Luderus is very, very steady, but undependable, and he can hit them high up and far away.

KONETCHY IS BIG PROBLEM.

It would be fine to see Konetchy in a World's Series. This fellow is the hardest to dope in all the land. He ought to be one of the greatest in the world, and he never has been, although last year he played fine ball in the Federal, and this season he has gone along as steadily as anyone could ask.

He is not busting them as he used to do, but under Stallings' system of playing the game, few men can bat. He is hitting for the team and not for Konetchy—and I think he has at last settled down to study and play baseball. It would be great to have him put to the real test in a series.

Although the Nationals have an edge on the comparison of first baseman, it is not a large one—not enough to affect the result of the series in any vital manner. Tomorrow we will take up the second baseman.

ROOTERS IN LAST RALLY

Three More Days in Which to Join Band Which Will Cheer Sox in Series.

Are you a Royal Rooter?

Do you aspire towards membership in that world-famous body of Boston fans?

You will have to step lively, brother, for applications for places in the Royal Rooters reservation at the Boston and Brooklyn ball parks, together with a reserved seat in the Royal Rooters' special train to Brooklyn and back, will not be received after Saturday of the present week. Three days left for action!

Chairman John M. Killeen of the Rooters' executive committee has decided that it is Brooklyn the Red Sox must play, and in that event feels that the Rooters must be prepared to act promptly and in business-like fashion.

BIT EXPENSE OF TRIP.

"To see the big games this year as a Royal Rooter," Chairman Killeen said this afternoon to the AMERICAN, "will cost each Royal Rooter the small sum of $37.

"This amount will pay for a seat at each of the World's Series games, the round-trip railroad fare from Boston to New York (Brooklyn) and home again. It will cover the expense of automobiles from hotel to ball park and return. If only four or five be lodged there will be a refund.

"There is still a chance that we may have to go to Philadelphia, in that event, the sum of $4 must be added.

"Today I desire to stir the Old Guard to action. The fellows who went to Pittsburgh, New York and Philadelphia will have first call if they will only ring the bell promptly.

"Applications should be sent without delay to the Hotel Continental, in Essex street, and in every case must be accompanied by a check for $37. If the Philadelphia possibility becomes a reality we will collect the additional $4 when the tickets are issued.

TICKETS ARE LIMITED.

"The number of tickets at our disposal is limited. The Rooters' committee will not ask for more tickets than have been called for by Royal Rooters when it is established beyond doubt just which team the Lansing boys must meet. When the race is decided, the Rooters' committee will receive no further applications, and its books will be closed."

An innovation this year will be the reservation of special cars on the train for ladies and their escorts.

DAUBERT PASSES WHEAT IN HOT BATTING RACE

The outstanding feature of the race for the batting supremacy in the National League Wednesday was that Jake Daubert moved up to second place. As the result of Tuesday's work he tied Zack Wheat, but Wednesday he passed his teammate. The Dodger captain made one hit in three times up, while Wheat, in the same number of times at bat, failed to strike a safe blow.

Hal Chase was idle, and Roger Hornsby lost a fraction of a point, in the four times at bat the Cardinal star made only one hit. Neither the Tigers nor the Indians played, and the figures of Tris Speaker and Ty Cobb remained the same.

Here is how the four National League leaders stand:

	At Bat.	Hits.	Ave.
Chase	520	177	.334
Daubert	458	140	.310
Wheat	548	174	.317
Hornsby	480	152	.311

Here is how Speaker and Cobb stand to date

	At Bat.	Hits.	Ave.
Speaker	538	208	.384
Cobb	527	191	.362

COFFEY FAVORED IN BOUT WITH O'BRIEN

Providence, Sept. 28.—Jimmy Coffey of New York got the best of Referee Jack Farrell when he was declared the winner over Jack O'Brien of Philadelphia at the end of their fifteen-round bout at the National A. C., Marieville. Quite half the crowd thought O'Brien entitled to at least a draw, if not the decision.

Ring Men Back in U.S. Trip to S. A. Bloomer

New York, Sept. 28.—One fair town was graced by the arrival of many notables from South America. The folks who galloped down the gangplank weren't invaders—far from that. They were the members of the happy band that sailed away months ago to inculcate the spirit of the manly art in our southern sister republic.

Words cannot express how our travelers in the Argentine Republic welcomed the Yankees. They were installed in the best apartments of the manly art lands their cities, but as for paying money to see the boys slam and bang—that was something the folks around the Equator balked at.

Consequently our worthy demonstrators of the Art and get away with it were forced to hasten to their native heath, for the going became very rocky.

The returned travellers were led by James Buckley, a gentleman of Philadelphia and not afraid to speak his mind. Jim says he didn't find the brother act engaged in by Kid Langford and Sam Mckey put the finish on the trip.

After the two big outfits fellows finished their exhibitions, Jimmies America, the few spectators shouted in Spanish that bags were burning close by. McKey didn't come back, but trekked on to Chili, where the Clover Leaf pilot is said to be. Mr. McKey is the minority owner. Law rence and Lil Di Vogel, a lad of whom we have heard a few times in the past few years, is the proud possessor of James Joy. Charles wrote home a month before he started for the trip to see his mother to arrange a large healthy beef stew to greet him on his return. As soon as Charles could clean back he attended for the wedding.

Crowley in Bout Against Yelle

Mike Crowley of Malden has a fine chance to come back tomorrow night at the Commercial A. C., and he will try his hardest to do so when he faces Fred Yelle of Taunton in a feature bout. Mike has not been very far away His bout with Reagan was not much of a setback in the estimation of the "fans," for Mike was going along serenely enough until he eased [illegible] right swing. This was playing into Reagan's hands for the last one to bounce off was faster than Mike's swing and landed first.

Crowley declares there will be no swinging tomorrow night. He says he will jab Yelle throughout the evening as he has designs on the New England championship, and he has not all doped out to whip Yelle and then Hurley.

Novelized From the Great Film Play

ON the morning of the dinner party, desperate, overdue efforts to solve, Mr. James Barton rose because and hurried to the corner on which Simeon Gold's imposing home was built. He stood there with the idle, hands in pocket, nothing to-do-till-tomorrow appearance which one sees too many youths displaying at too many street corners in our American cities.

The exact means by which he were to work out [illegible] had not yet been decided. Jimmy was there to supply a few missing links in our scheme of things. The point was that we had to get into Simeon Gold's house and get in without that gentleman's knowledge or invitation.

Presently Gold came out and walked away. Jimmy watched him stepping pompously up the street with an air which suggested that he considered himself a useful and important citizen. Then he turned to examine the premises.

A vegetable wagon had turned off the main thoroughfare into the passing down the side street. Jimmy watched this for a moment, and then his inspiration came to him. There were moments later on during that day when I wished it had not come!

Jimmy's Disguise

Jimmy hurried down the street after the wagon and saw it turning into the alley back of the Gold house. Before the driver could set about shouting his wares Jimmy hurried to his side. There was an exchange of conversation and then a bill changed hands. After that there was a further exchange. Jimmy climbed on the wagon wearing the appleman's hat and coat, and right lustily, Mr. Barton shouted his wares.

Presently he filled a peck measure generously and climbed down the wagon. His destination was the rear porch of the Gold house. Mr. Barton hurried up the stairs and rang the door bell. A pretty kitchen maid came to the door, and glancing out indifferently, assured the vegetable man that he needn't be bothering her, as she had plenty of apples the day.

Jimmy used his persuasive smile—a smile worthy of any of Erin's most charming sons. He grinned, and then he brought his head down with a snap on the red skin of a juicy apple.

"The apples looks just match your own, my dear. Only I think yours are a little redder than my best Jonathans can show. Have one—unless you feel like a cannibal!" said he.

Jimmy Wins Out

Judy Nora looked at him with a twinkle in her eye. "I'm thinkin' ye're maybe from Sligo yerself," said she. "Tony the Wop niver eats aboot his business after that fashion. Arn't ye ashamed of yerself to be tasin' a hard-workin' girl like me?"

"I'm not averse to a bit o' the Blarney," retorted Jimmy, accepting his cue promptly, "and who wouldn't be making up to a pretty girl like yourself unless it was a dago with a wife and ten youngsters! Come on, now, have a bite of the apple."

During Jimmy pinched pert Nora red cheeks and the girl responded at once to his love making and invited him into her kitchen. To her it was a break in the day's routine—a little chance to be treated for a moment as a human being instead of as a maker of pies and sauces. To Jimmy it was the first movement in his campaign in behalf of Madeline Grey.

Smiling and talking they entered the kitchen. The new vegetable man set down his measure of apples and took out a package of gum from his pocket.

"Are you too high toned to like the taste of pepsin?" said he.

"Not at all!" laughed Nora, liking the implication that she was "tony."

Jimmy stuffed several sticks of the gum into his generous mouth and assured her that it didn't take much for a little rosebud affair like her mouth, but when your lips went stretching from ear to ear it needed a bit more to fill up the cavity.

"And now, do I make a sale of apples, my dear?" said he.

"You do, indade!" said she, and went to fetch a container for the fruit.

Jimmy Barton (Harry Fox) disguises himself as a pedlar and ingratiates himself with Simeon Gold's maid.

Directly Nora left the room, Jimmy tiptoed over to the kitchen door and took out the keys. Then the reason for his gum-chewing became evident. He meant to use that material as a mold in which to carry away an impression of that door key!

Jimmy had found his open sesame to Simeon Gold's house.

He moved with his usual catlike quickness and had the key back in the lock again before the maid returned with a dish for the apples.

Nora paid him, and he bade her a fond farewell and left with a promise to return sooner than she expected. Nora stood in the doorway waving to him and turned away with a sigh after Jimmy had departed.

And a moment later there was an exchange of vegetable men. Any pangs of jealous Nora might have experienced about the other girls the new man would meet and make love to on his rounds were wasted, for Tony returned in the place on his cart and Jimmy went off to interview a locksmith.

Granny and I dined alone that evening. I can't say that I enjoyed my meal, for I was under a nervous tension which it was impossible for me to conquer.

The Only Way

Here was I—Beatrice Fairfax of the Evening Journal, pledged to give my support to a proceeding justified only by the necessity of a troubled wife. I could not conscientiously have recommended what I was doing to any of my girls, nor could I reconcile myself to it. And yet, even while I disapproved, I disapproved of myself for the Quaker conciseness which made me hesitate to give my support to the obvious needs of a desperate woman.

At 8 o'clock Mr. Barton was announced. He had the placid air of a gentleman about to set out for a series of evening calls.

"You don't look much like a housebreaker!" laughed Granny.

"Especially not like the sort to break in the rear entrance," laughed Jimmy, "but here is the key to the situation and the back door of Simeon Gold's painful residence. Say, I've thought of a good one—if a house built on sand shall fall, what's to become of a house built on gum?"

"Mr. Barton, I suggest you be serious. Have you looked into the penalties for breaking and entering?" I asked.

Jimmy looked at me seriously enough. "There will be no penalty. I have discovered that Gold usually retires shortly after midnight. I'll be through before that. I think you might telephone Mrs. Grey and reassure her. You can promise her that I'll put those letters in her hands a little before 1, and tell her I hope her husband doesn't come home and find me calling on her."

I called up Madeleine Grey on the phone and bade her dismiss worry, since Mr. Barton hoped to get the letters that very night.

Then I turned to Jimmy. "And you needn't worry about the return of a desperately jealous husband, for I am going with you. You will be chaperoned when you return Mrs. Grey's letters."

Beatrice Insists

"You can't go with me. You shan't! I won't let you risk it. Why, Miss Fairfax, it's bad enough for me to have to venture into Simeon Gold's house like a thief in the night, but you—merciful hearen! don't you see what it means to you if you are caught?"

"Yes, I see. I have had this all out with Granny—and I'm going with you."

Jimmy tried to argue, but it profited him nothing—for I insisted, and there was too precious to waste in arguing with a stubborn woman.

At the end Jimmy tried to laugh back his own courage, like a boy whistling up a storm. "Well, of course, we won't get caught," said he.

But in dealing with a man like Simeon Gold it really does not pay to reckon without your host

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

WAIT!

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Last September I met a very nice young man of good family who has since asked me to marry him. He has given me a ring and his other half and I be found out through a [illegible] who do that sort of thing in [illegible]. My family [illegible] may go back to [illegible]. The question I [illegible] is, I ought to marry h[illegible]. He owns a splendid position, and although my present home is as good as can be, he can even give me a better. I am eighteen and he is twenty-four.

ANXIOUS.

I THINK you ought to wait a year or two until the man has proven his reformation complete and lasting. You are very young and can well afford to do this, and if time demonstrates that his character has really changed for the better, the objections of your family will undoubtedly terminate. In general I am quite opposed to the idea of a girl's marrying when she is only eighteen and neither her character nor her tastes are formed. Test your own feelings and the change of heart of your lover. Time is absolutely the only assurance he can give you and your people think he has conquered his old habits and formed new and stable ones.

COPPER STOCKS NEARLY ALL SHOW GAIN

While the volume of business on the New York Stock Exchange was much smaller than on preceding days this week, prices with few exceptions were higher at noon today.

Copper stocks were the most active, nearly all these issues showing good gains. Inspiration was an exception, however. After touching a new high level at 69⅝, this stock, on heavy profit-taking sales, dropped to 68, off a point.

The demand for United States Steel increased again and it advanced 1⅜ points to 116⅞. Other steels were also in demand, Republic Iron & Steel lifting to a new high level of 75. Crucible Steel advanced 1⅛ to 95.

Willys-Overland featured the motor stocks by advancing 2¾ points to 43. General Electric was also prominent, gaining 4¼ to 180¾. Texas Company, in contrast with its weakness yesterday, moved up five points to 221.

Prices of railroad stocks at noon were mixed, some being higher and some lower. Reading and Union Pacific were again the most active, the former advancing ½ and the latter losing ½. The recession in Union Pacific was due to profit-taking, which was heavy enough to offset favorable talk of an increased dividend.

Mercantile Marine stocks, common and preferred, were in large demand at increasing prices on report that the company's receiver would be discharged and a president elected at a stockholders' meeting tomorrow.

Copper Range was the feature of the Boston market, advancing 3¼ points to 72, the highest price since 1910. There was a good demand for other coppers, too, Centennial moving up 1¾ and Granby ⅝.

United Fruit also attracted attention by advancing 1⅝ points to 165¾. It later reacted somewhat. Isle Royale lost ⅝.

An Opportunity for Those Who Have Had Infantile Paralysis to Serve the Public Good

THE Harvard Medical School has offered to supply, free of charge, to persons afflicted with infantile paralysis all the serum antitoxine which it can obtain. It further offers to supply, free of charge, experts in the diagnosis of suspected cases of infantile paralysis and experts in the administration of the serum.

This is a very important and public-spirited contribution by Harvard University to the health of our citizens, and its scope will only be limited by the amount of serum which it can obtain for distribution. This serum is made from the blood of those who have recovered from infantile paralysis. The commission of experts at the medical school have asked for volunteers who will offer some inconsiderable quantity of blood from which this serum may be extracted.

Here is an opportunity for people to perform a great public charity. The taking of their blood will subject them to very little inconvenience and will give them the immense satisfaction of service rendered to unfortunate fellow creatures. Everybody who has had infantile paralysis ought to be willing and indeed glad to render this service. It is an opportunity which is given to few persons to benefit their fellowmen.

Those who have recovered from this affliction and who are willing to confer this great benefit on mankind can telephone to the Harvard Medical School and ask to talk to the commission on infantile paralysis, and thus will learn the details of the work and how they can help and what inconvenience it will involve.

The action of the Harvard Medical School gives us great hope that we shall obtain control of this plague. Heretofore, doctors and physicians in this community have affected to take rather lightly a situation concerning which they knew nothing, probably because they did know nothing about it. But now that one of the great medical institutions of the world has appraised the situation adequately we may hope.

In how much better light Harvard University is placed by this public-spirited act of one of its great departments than when its tory president drags it through the slime of standpat politics in opposition to the public service of men like Mr. Justice Louis D. Brandeis, or in opposition to great reforms like the initiative and referendum and other progressive policies calculated to work greater social justice and to preserve political and economic equality, without which no popular government can long exist.

Two Great Questions to Be Partly Decided at the State Election

ON the ballot at the coming State election there will appear in a number of representative districts two questions. One question is whether or not the voters believe that we should have the initiative and referendum. The other question is whether the voters of the State believe that we should have old-age pensions. Both these proposals are great reform measures which have been adopted by progressive nations of the world.

The initiative and the referendum regenerated the Republic of Switzerland, raising her from the lowest depths of degradation and political corruption to one of the purest governments in Europe and the purest democracy in the world, save possibly New Zealand. It is a method by which the people may veto a bad law which a bad or a corrupt legislature has passed against the public interest. This is the referendum. The initiative is a device by which, when a series of bad legislators persistently refuse to make a good law, a large number of persons on a petition can cause the law to be submitted to all the voters of the State at the State election. The State of Maine has the initiative and referendum and the progressive western States are rapidly adopting it. Switzerland, Australia and New Zealand have it, and those countries have progressed in everything that makes men happy and prosperous in a way to make this country ashamed, with all our resources and opportunities.

The other question concerns old-age pensions. For centuries we have recognized the duty of all the people to prevent any unfortunate individual among us from starving on account of old age. But our old-fashioned method of providing for them has been crude and cruel—the poorhouse. Modern progressive countries are adopting the method of pensioning old people as we pension veteran soldiers, and thus permitting them to live with their families.

As civilization advances, we are undertaking to alleviate the inequalities of human conditions more and more by great social legislation. This country, the richest in the world, has unfortunately in recent years been a laggard in the march of progress. It is time we woke up and took our place at the head of the forward-moving column of the nations of the world.

Essay on Bunk

BILL SMITHERS got drunk in Nevada one night,
The bartenders turned him out cold,
So he slept on the mountain, and when it was light,
Discovered a ledge full of gold.
And now he distributes advice to young men,
"You can all be successes," says he,
"If you never shirk hard and wearisome work.
Just look where great effort put me!"

JOHN WAFFLES was left fifty millions in cash,
All tied safely up in a trust,
And though his own flyers went always to smash,
He took on a marvelous crust.
He lectures to youth on the way to succeed,
"The plodder will prosper," says he,
"Just plain perseverance is all that you need
To pile up a fortune, like me."

JAKE DUCKETT went south with the funds of a bank
But covered his tracks when he flitted,
And, when the police brought him back with a yank,
Was promptly and deftly acquitted.
And now he goes 'round giving youngsters advice;
"All men may have riches," says he,
"Just unflagging honesty, that will suffice
To make you a rich man, like me."

Is Lead "Used-Up" Radium?

By Edgar Lucien Larkin

FACTS in the comprehensive science of geology never require and indicate that the earth's age must be expressed in terms of hundreds of millions of years. This is known from discovery of excessively old radio-active rocks. Radium in deep strata is pent up, as it were, as a result of disintegration of uranium. Radium sends forth from its mass an emanation which itself emanates, or sends forth, electrons. But an equilibrium is established—the two react on each other and slow down the process.

But the disintegration of radium finally, in great lengths of time, descends to the rate of lead. There is an immense quantity of lead in the earth, and so far as now can be seen it has all resulted from transformation of radium. How many ages of time have been passed in this degradation of refined radium into dull cold lead, used mostly for bullets, may never be discovered.

But, however long, the time is short in comparison with that required for the production of radium from uranium. Some physicists have found that this time is expressed in terms of billions of years—rates and formulas indicating eight billion years. This for separation. Then how long for formation or assembling all of the uranium in even the little globe, the earth?

These are within the earth phenomena. But what of the surface? At La Jolla the ancient beach walls are worn by wave and wind into such deep, cavernous recesses that the time of wearing can only be expressed in millions of years. But these huge battlements are mere surface rocks of the globe not archaic, but modern.

Astronomers have for long been jealous of their periods of time and have not been willing to give geologists such inconceivable ages for their minute earth, almost invisible, and therefore unknown in space. But they have yielded and now give the terrestrial people as many billions of years as called for. The assembling of small and larger meteors into a sun two million times larger than our sun has required time enough, and plenty to appropriate to the formation of the earth.

No use in writing the supposition that matter is infinite and time eternal, for it is now demonstrated that man cannot think of either, and therefore knows nothing about them.

Astronomer Barnard has discovered by photography a very rapid sun—its space-speed proper motion is ten seconds of arc per year. Since all circles contain 1,296,000 seconds of arc, this velocity, if maintained, will carry it entirely around the cosmical sphere in only 129,600 years. The most rapid star known before this has a specific speed of seven seconds annually. And that has been called a "run-away sun." But what of the newly discovered ten-second sun?

Thoughts by the Way

To blame a person for what his relatives have done is far from right.

Supposing your father, mother, brother or sister should do something disgraceful, would you feel that you were treated right if all your acquaintances shunned you on that account? Most certainly not.

Why, then, should you hold your skirts so tightly, as if you might be contaminated by that other person whose relative has gone wrong?

It makes a lot of difference whether you are the one affected or whether it is some one else; and, with the majority of us, it is a case of having to have an experience along that line to realise what some of our own actions are doing to the other fellow.

When one member of a family goes wrong, the relatives have enough to bear. It is your duty as a human being to assist in making the burden lighter.

Sending a Poor Girl to an Expensive School May Ruin Her Life

Dorothy Dix Condemns the Folly of Parents Who Skimp Themselves to Give Their Daughters a Taste for Luxuries They Can Never Afford

By Dorothy Dix

A WOMAN in very moderate financial circumstances said to me the other day:

"We are going to send Mamie off to Miss Blank's school this year. It is frightfully expensive and costs more than we really can afford. But it's very fashionable, and she will be thrown with girls who belong to the real society set so I feel that we should make the sacrifice."

Poor, silly mother! Poor, unfortunate little Mamie, who is to be the victim of the greatest unintentional cruelty in the world—that of having tastes, habits and aspirations cultivated in her that she will never have the means to gratify!

Surely of all sad sights no spectacle is more pathetic than that of poor but foolishly ambitious parents who work themselves to death and deny themselves every comfort in order to curse their daughters by sending them off to fashionable schools.

There the Poor Girl Learns False Values That Make Her Life a Burden

There the girl without money is thrown with the girl who has money to burn. There the impecunious maid, whose lot it is to walk through life, learns that it is better to have been born dead than not to have been born to a twelve-cylinder limousine. There the girl of lowly rank learns that society is the ultimate end of human ambition, and that the chief object of life is to wear exclusive Paris importations and outdress one's neighbor.

Perhaps that is all very well for little Miss Millionaire, to whom society is going to be a career and a business. It is doubtless important that she should spend much time in learning the art of dinner giving and learn how to devise amusements that will keep overfed, blase guests from yawning in her face. But no education could be more demoralizing than this to a poor girl.

It teaches the poor girl to look with contempt upon the plainness of her own home, and to despise her hard-worked parents. More than that, she must be continually mortified either by the simplicity of her clothes or else by her extravagance in trying to keep up with her schoolmates and thus adding fresh burdens and more hardships on her mother and father.

She Must Be Either a Parasite on the Rich or Be Lonely in Her Poverty

She must either withdraw from the camaraderie of school life and seem niggardly and mean by not playing her part in school affairs, or else she becomes a parasite and a dead beat by participating in pleasures for which someone else pays.

The inevitable result of such school life must be to make her either an anarchist, hating the rich girl who has more than she has, or else a sycophant who fawns and flatters in the hopes of holding on to the skirts of the wealthy.

Nor need any fond mother delude herself with the belief that the friendships formed with rich girls at such schools open the doors of society to the poor girl. No matter how intimate the poor girl and the rich girl have been in school the poor girl finds that the relationship ends at the school gate.

If the rich girl is good-natured, there may be a few invitations to quiet affairs extended the poor girl, and when they meet there may be a suspicious warmth of affection on the rich girl's part, but their paths lie in different directions, and school friendship is not strong enough to bridge over the chasm that lies between the mansion on the avenue and the cheap flat on a back street.

Schoolgirl Friendships Never Opened the Door of Society to Any Girl

But for the poor girl the tragedy is complete. She has been made dissatisfied with her own home and friends and her own lot in life, and has been given no other. She has learned to despise the worthy poor young clerk or bookkeeper who would marry her, and there is no fairy prince looming up on the horizon to bear her away to a palace.

She yearns for society, and the nearest she ever gets to it is reading in the papers the accounts of balls and parties to which she is never asked. She has been given a champagne taste, and she has only hydrant water with which to quench it.

So I implore poor parents not to be guilty of the supreme folly of sending their daughters off to fashionable schools. Send your girl to a school where she will associate with girls of her own class, where she will learn the things that will sweeten and not embitter her, where she will acquire practical knowledge that will be of use to her, instead of frills that will be in her way.

Do not believe for one minute that a society education will open the doors of the Four Hundred for a poor girl. Such an investment is a ticket that always draws a blank in the lottery of life.

Furthermore, don't sacrifice yourself and do without a Winter overcoat, or a new suit, to try to have your daughters taught "accomplishments" for which they have no aptitude. If a girl has talent, develop it, but for pity's sake don't force her into trying to do something that nature never intended her to do.

Remember that a school sets its ineffaceable seal upon a girl. She is at the plastic and impressionable time of her life. Her teachers form her ideals. Her schoolmates make her traditions. Therefore, send your daughter to a school that will educate her to be a happy, contented woman, instead of a disappointed, disgruntled one.

In-Shoots

When it comes to picking a husband, the brainest woman generally has worse luck than the girl with an empty think tank.

Do not always judge by appearances. The fellow with a 6¾ hat-band can often drive the sharpest bargain.

If at first you don't succeed, try, try again is usually the motto of the divorcee.

In case of war it is better to sell army supplies than shoulder a gun.

There is a difference between fast friends and rapid friends.
